

BRICKHEADZ MORTY SMITH

BRICK MONSTER
BUILDING GUIDES
www.brickmonster.toys

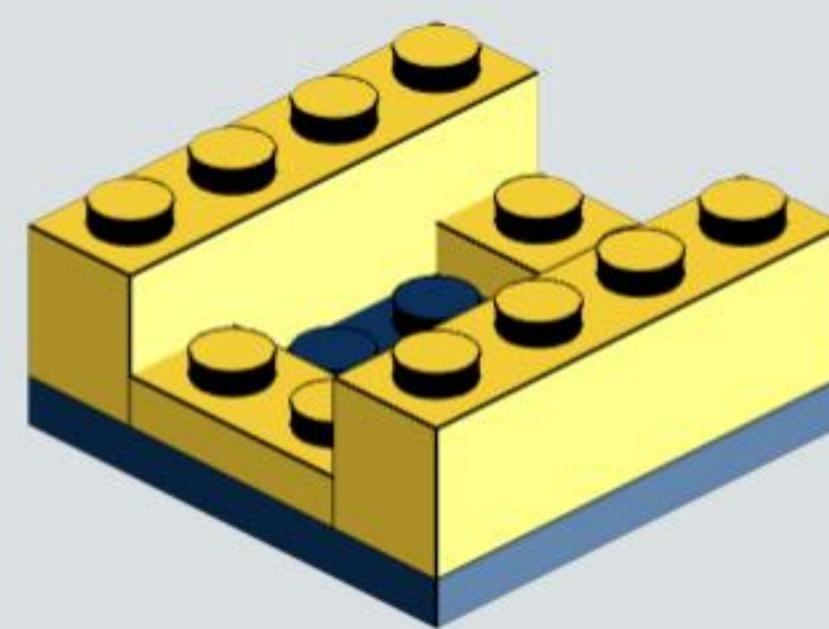

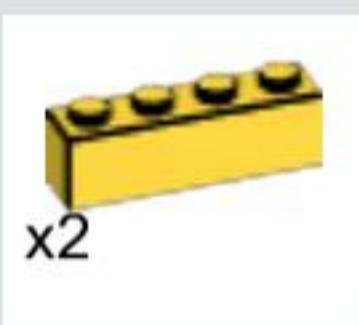

89 Parts

1

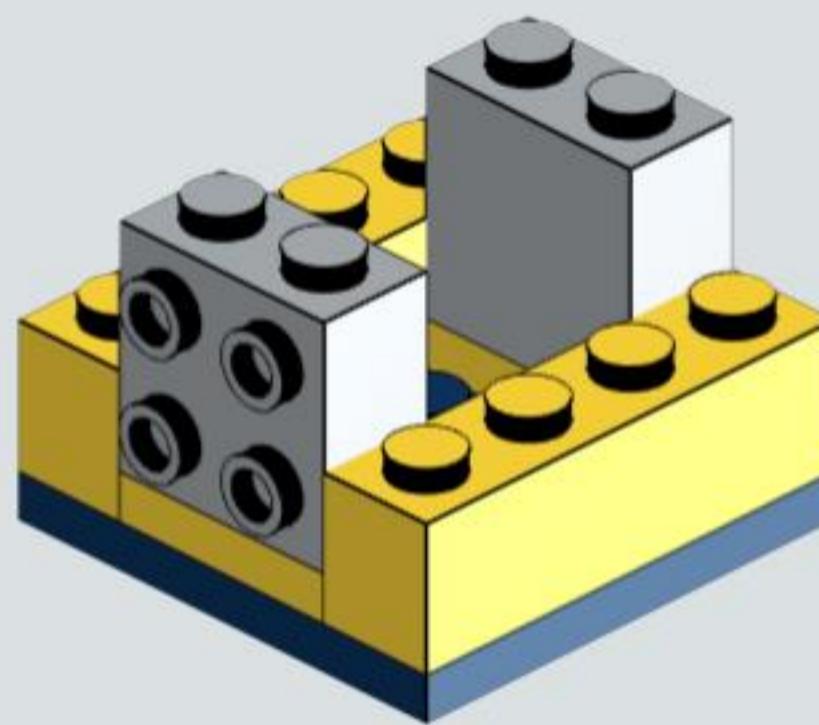

2

3

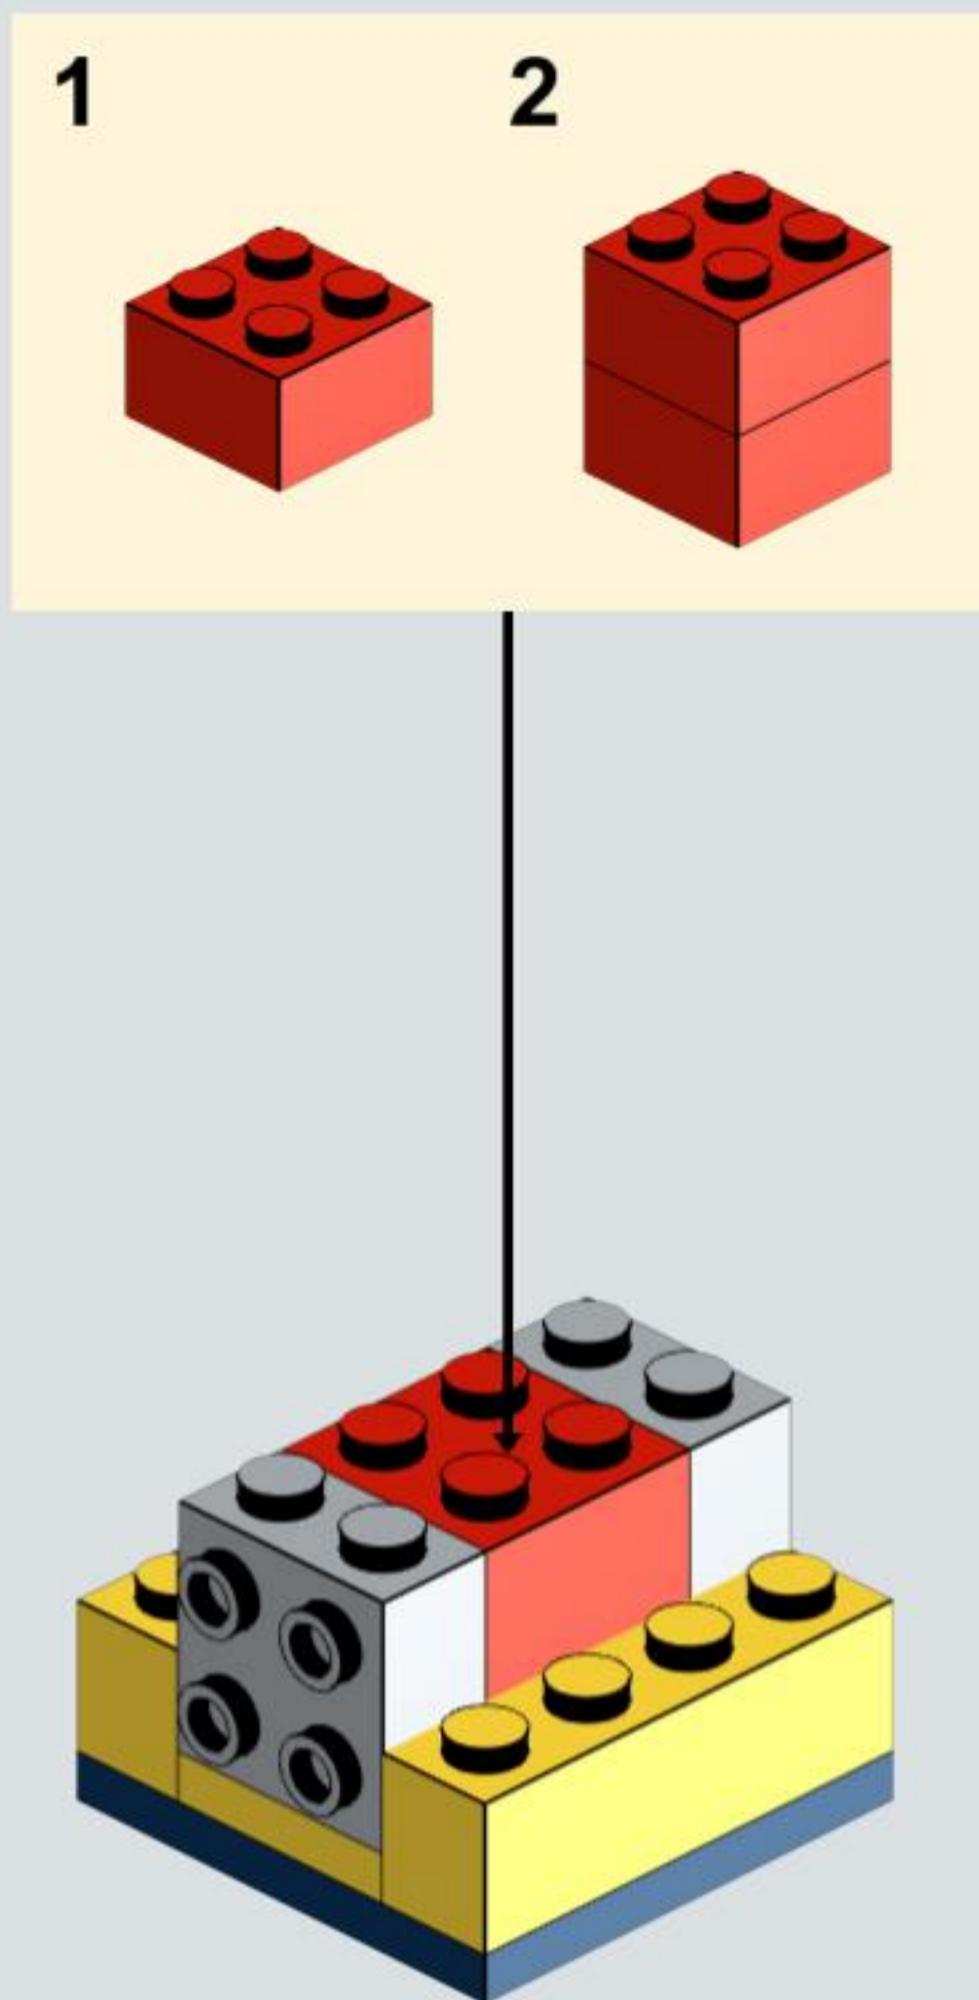

x2

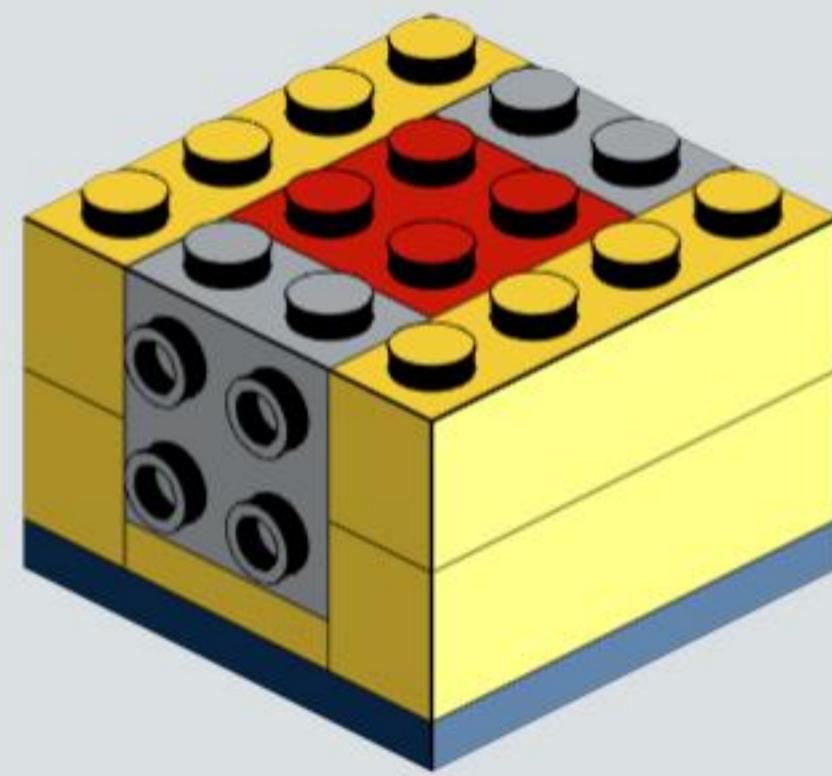

4

x2

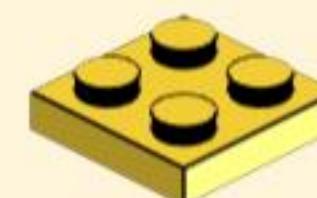

5

6

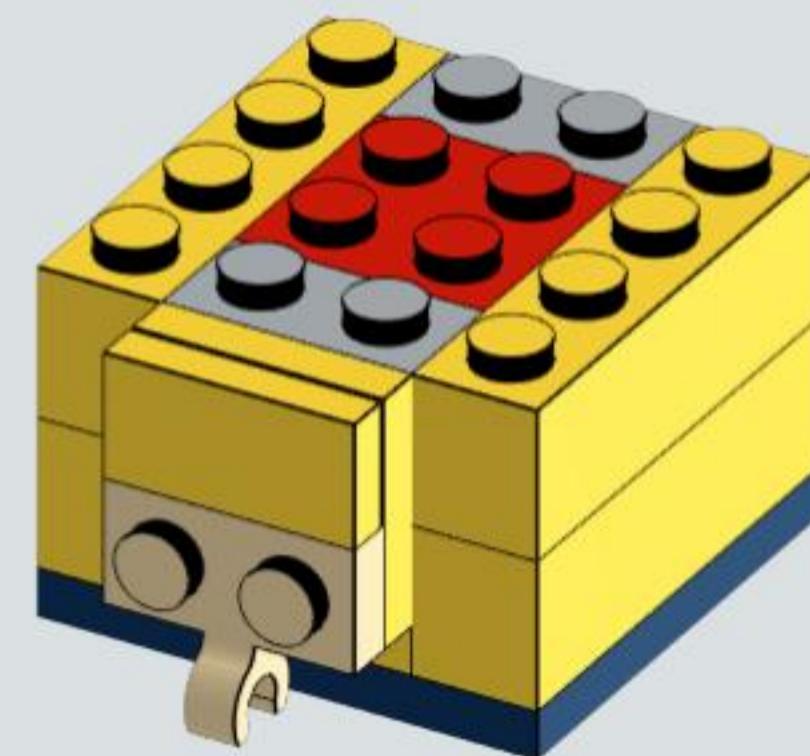

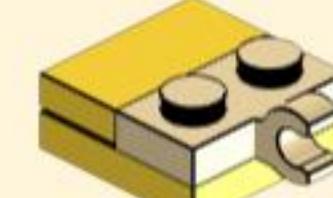

1

2

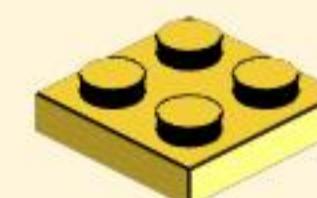

3

7

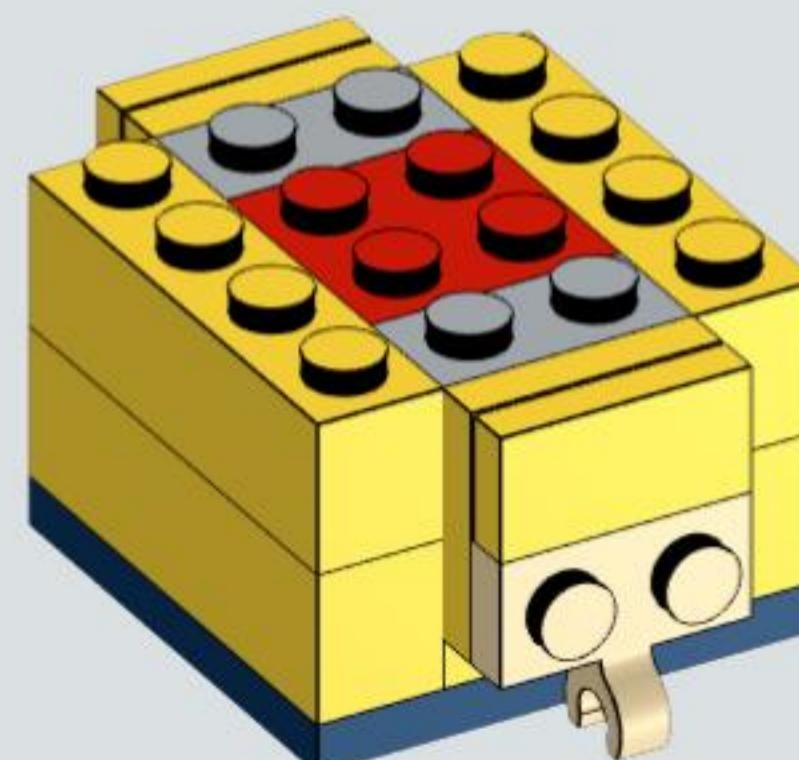

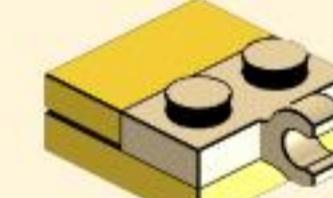

1

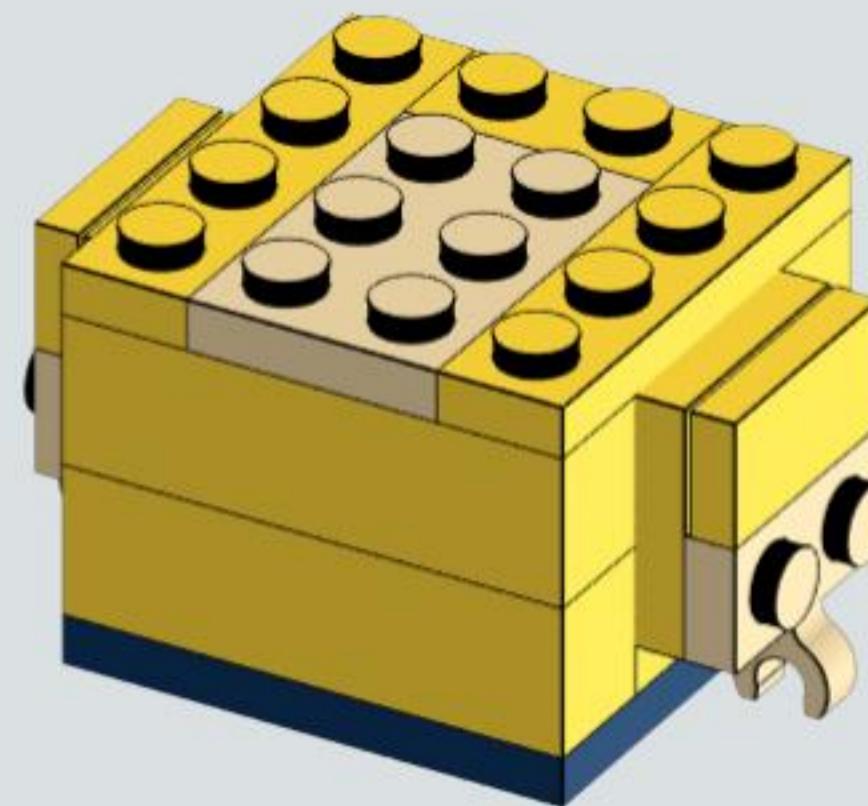

2

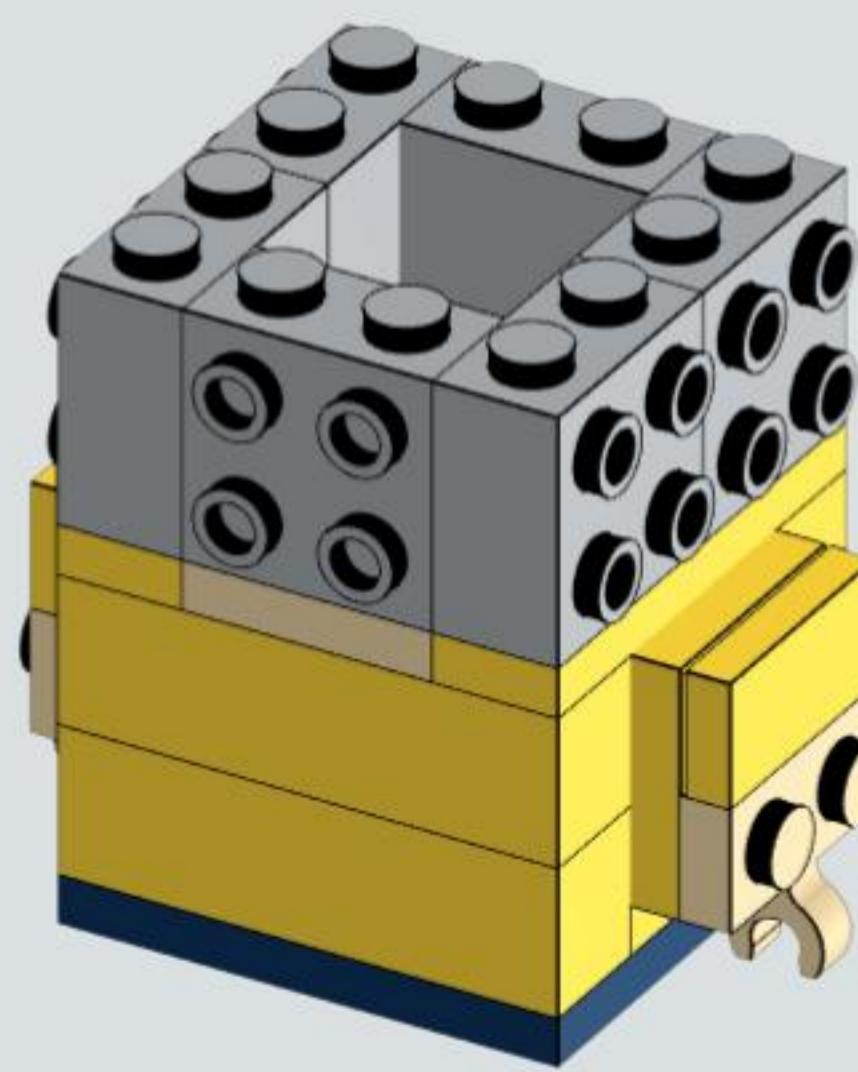

3

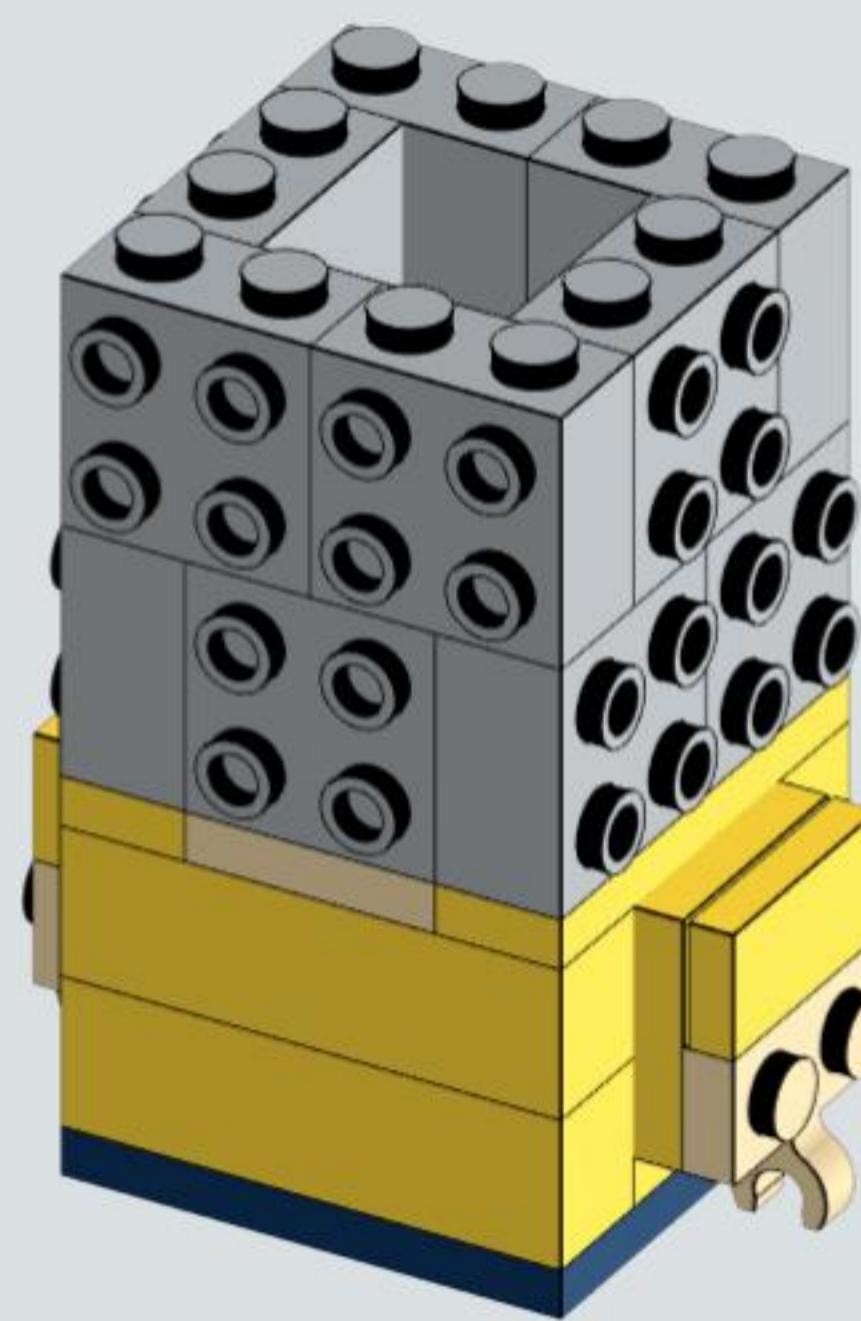

8

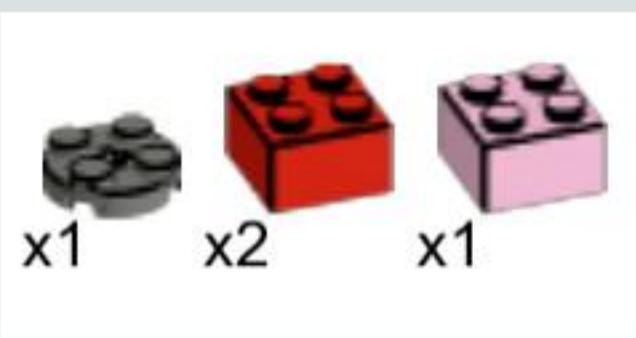

9

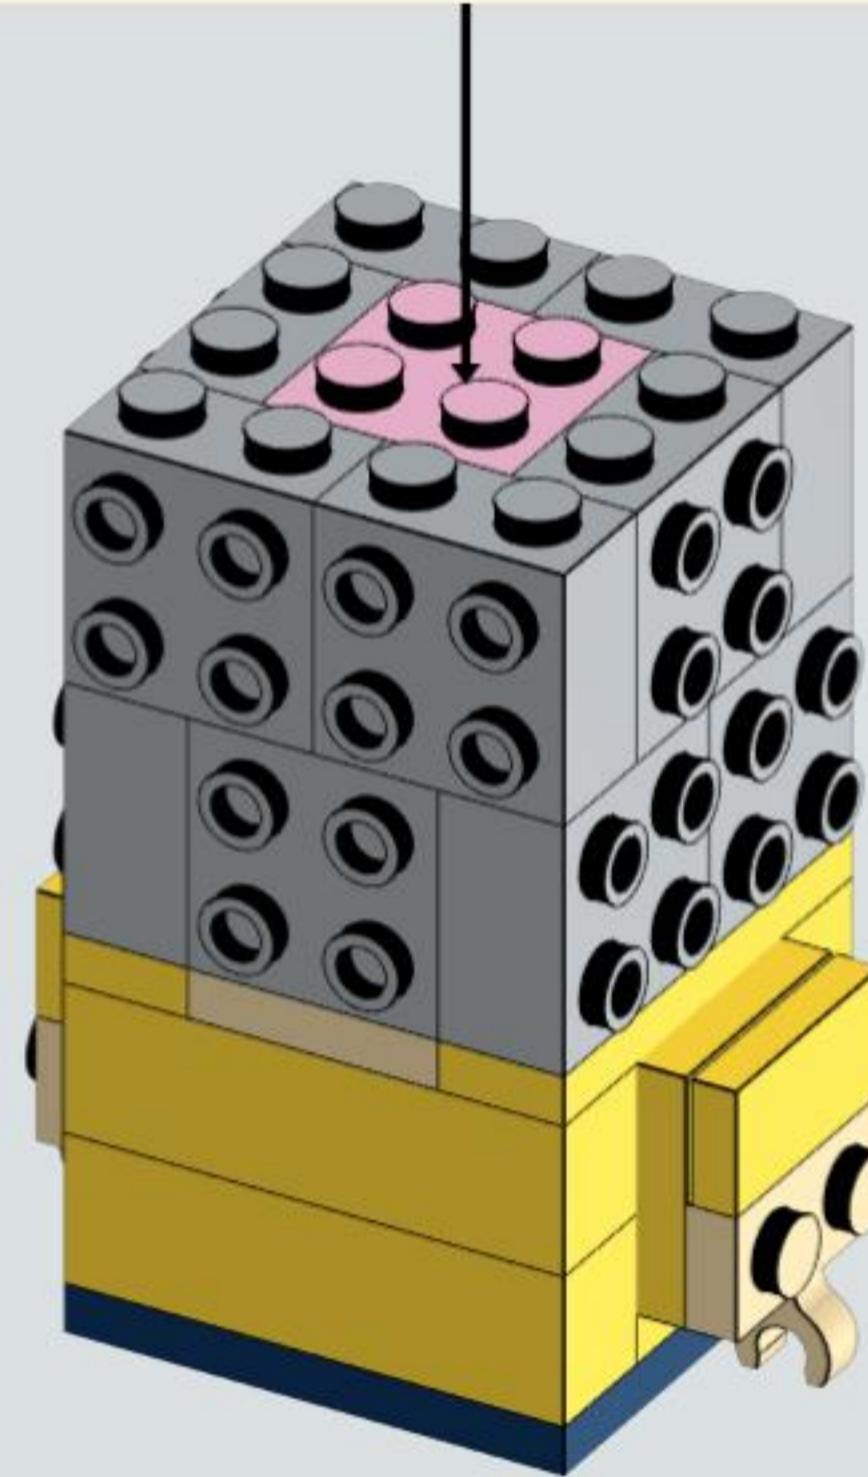

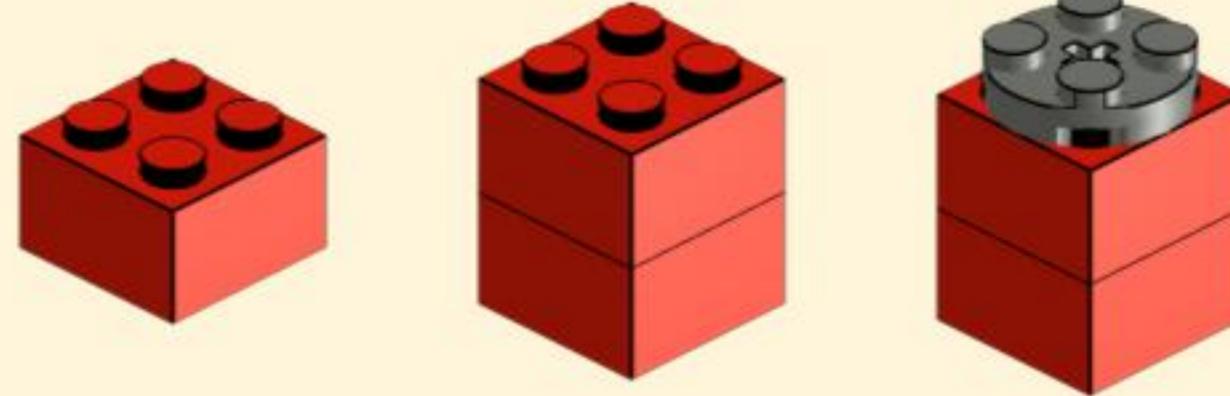

10

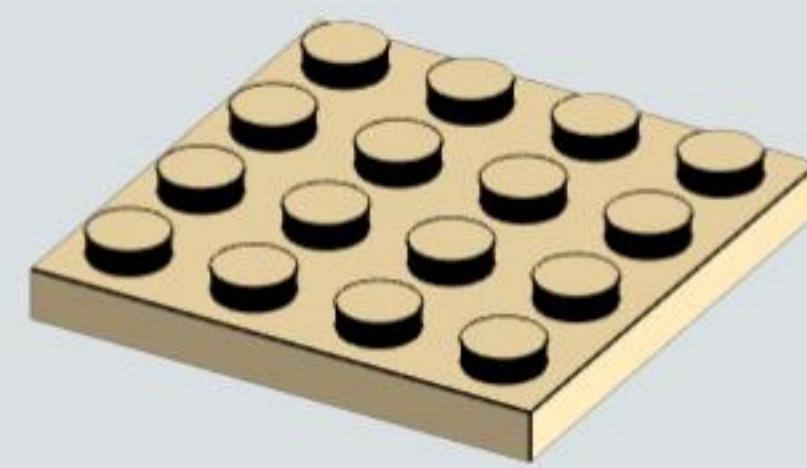

11

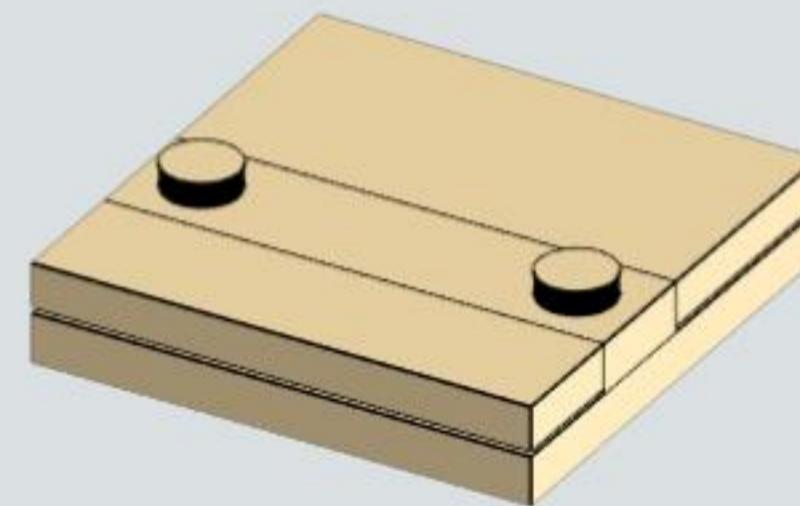

1 2 3 4

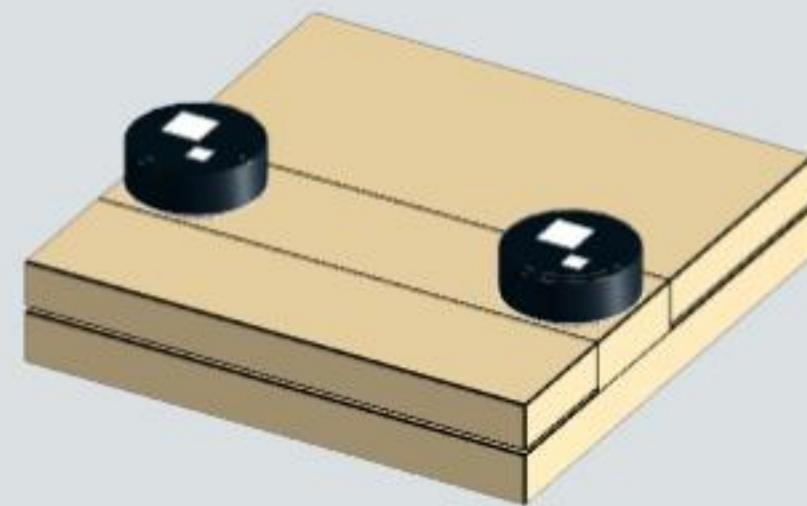

12

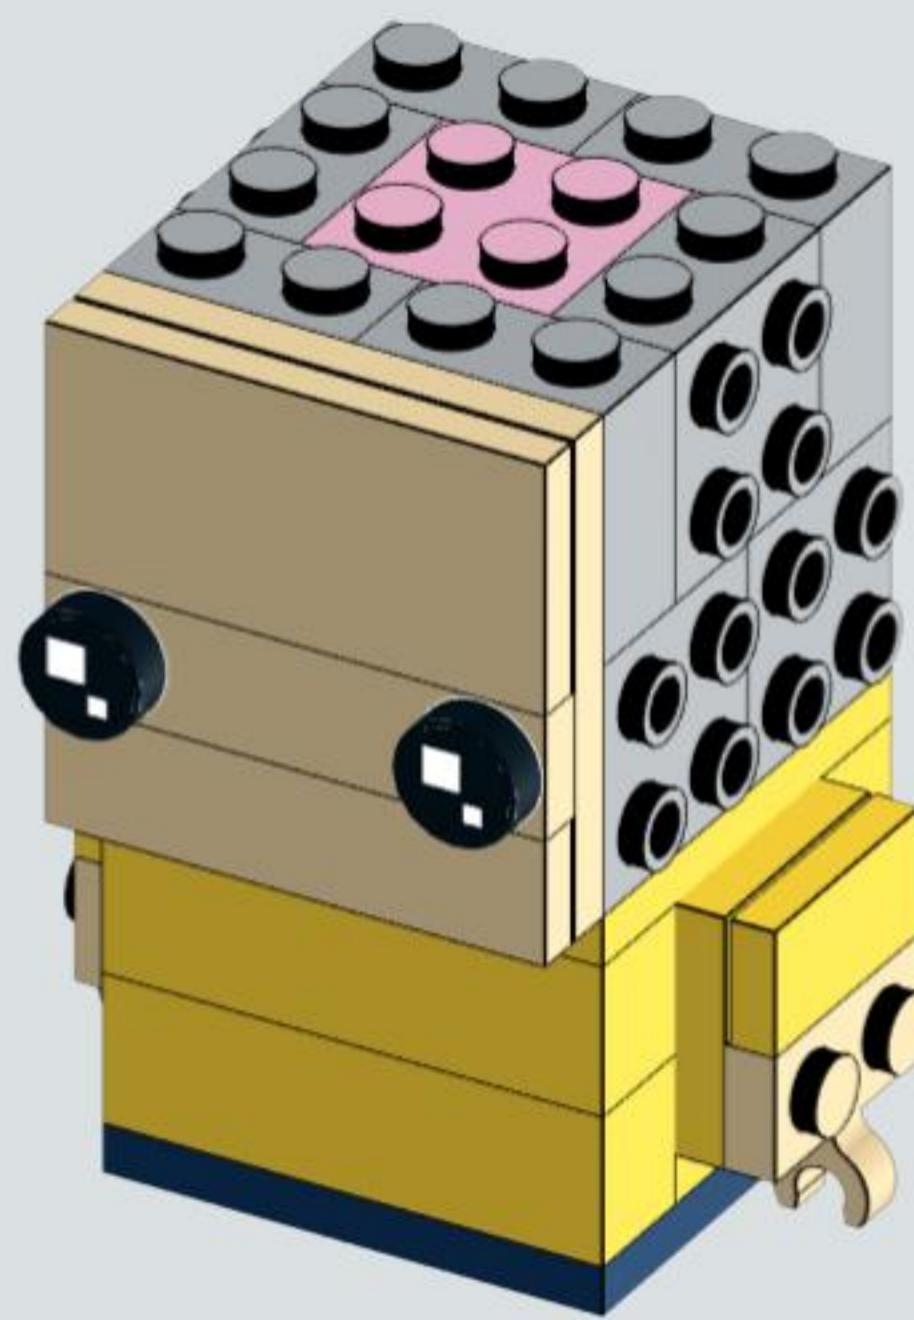

13

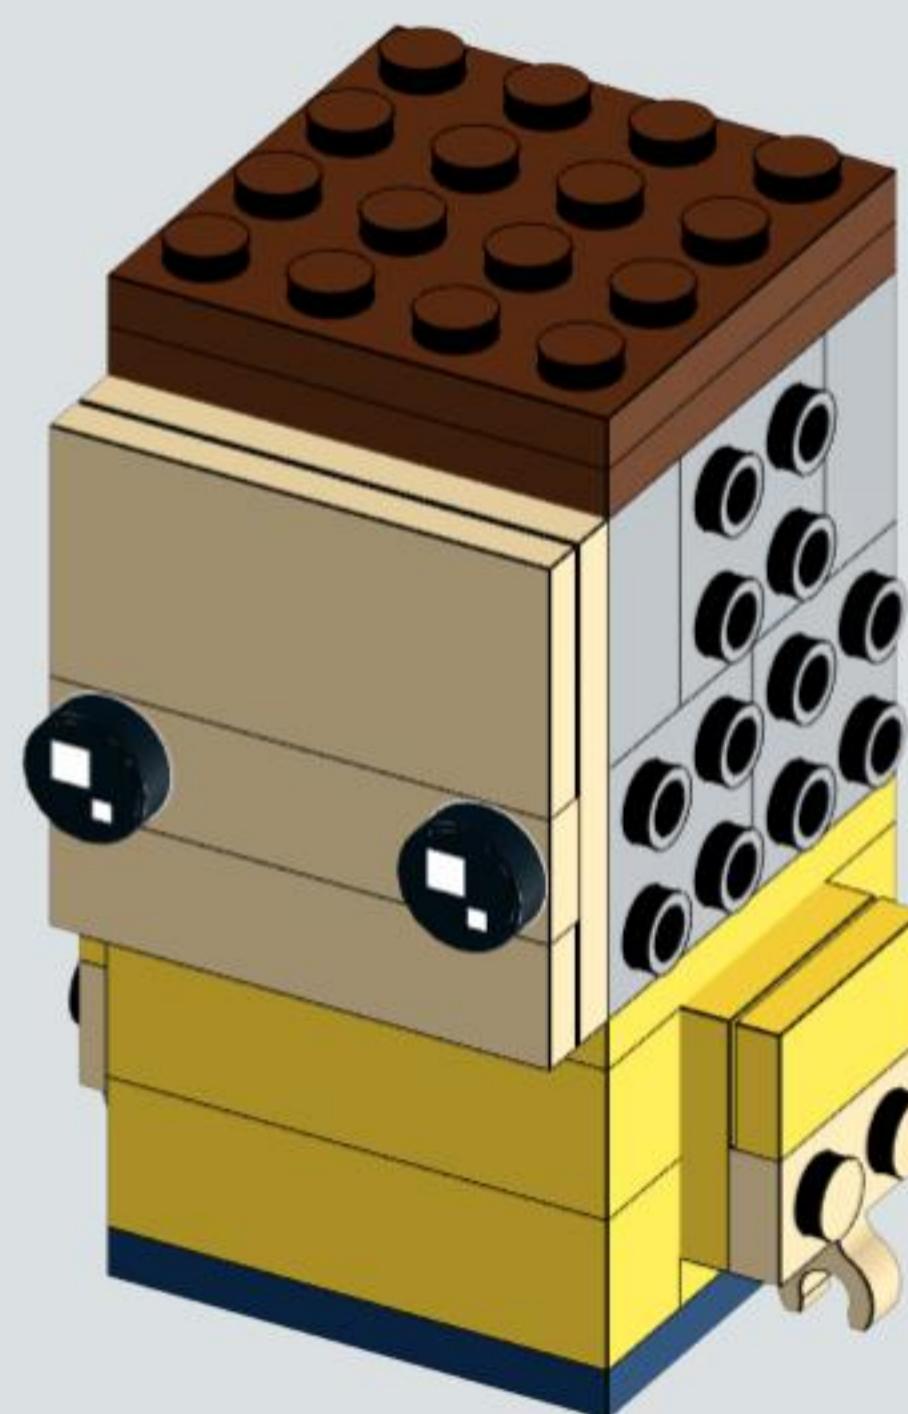

14

15

16

17

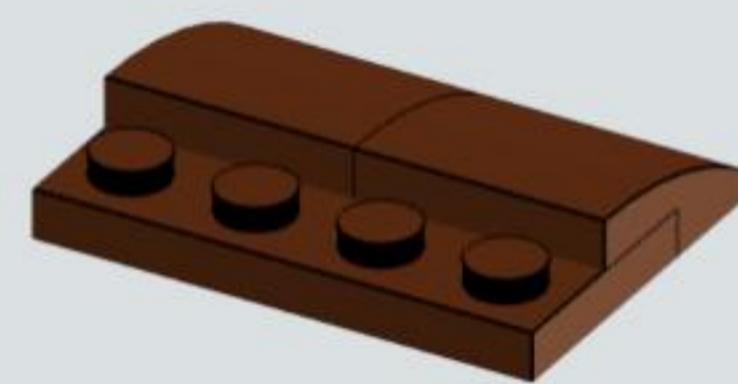

x1

18

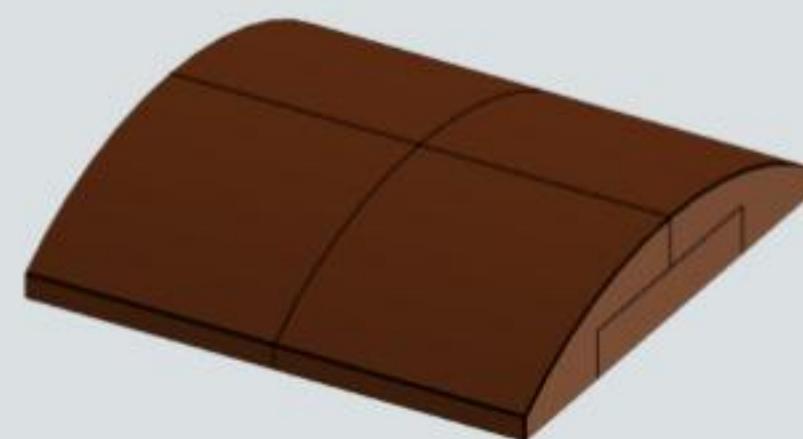

x2

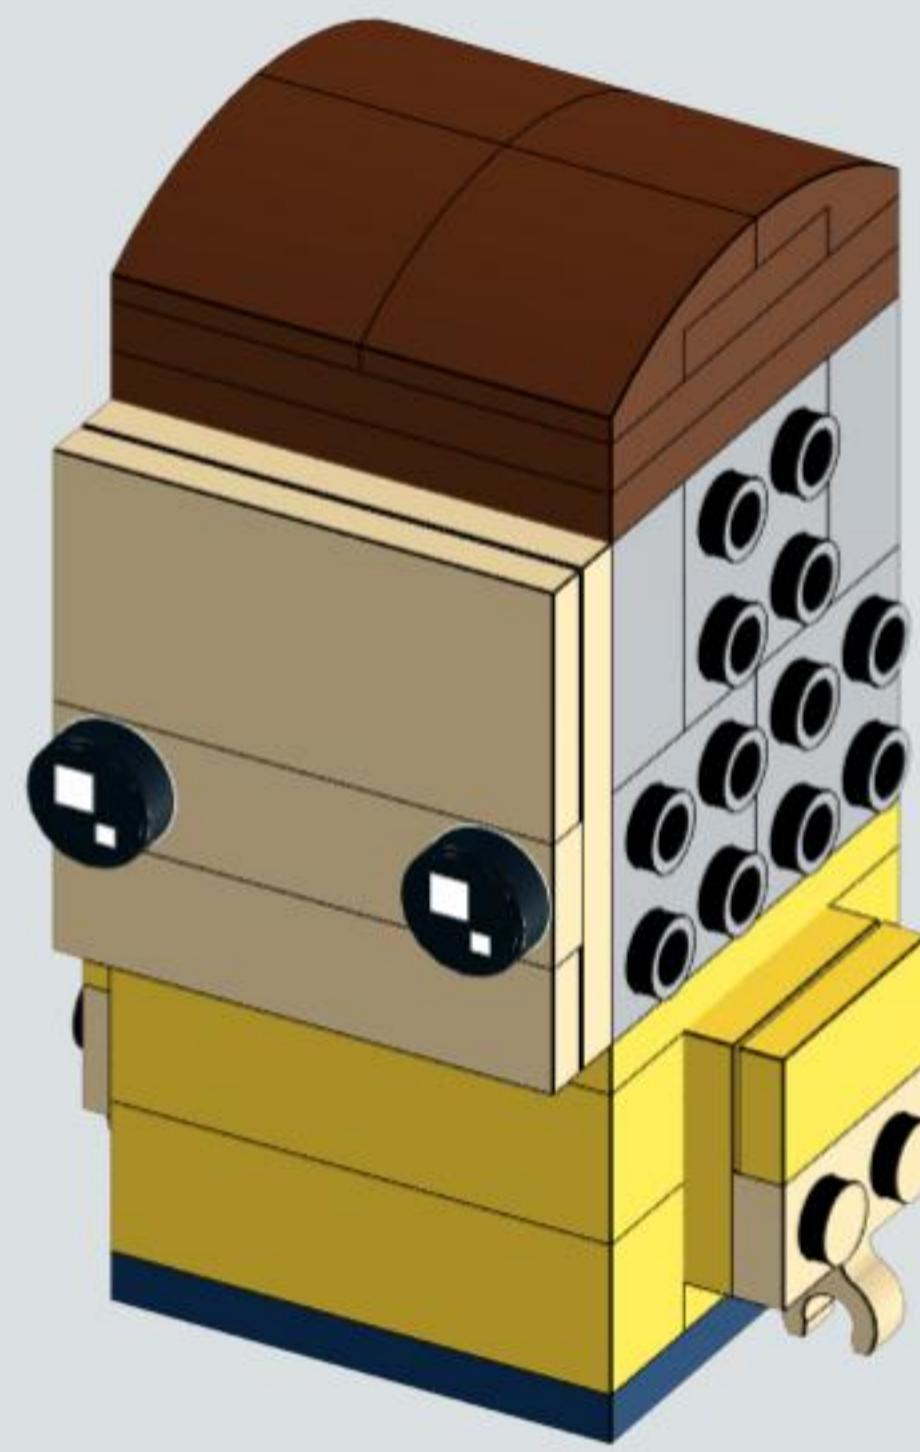

19

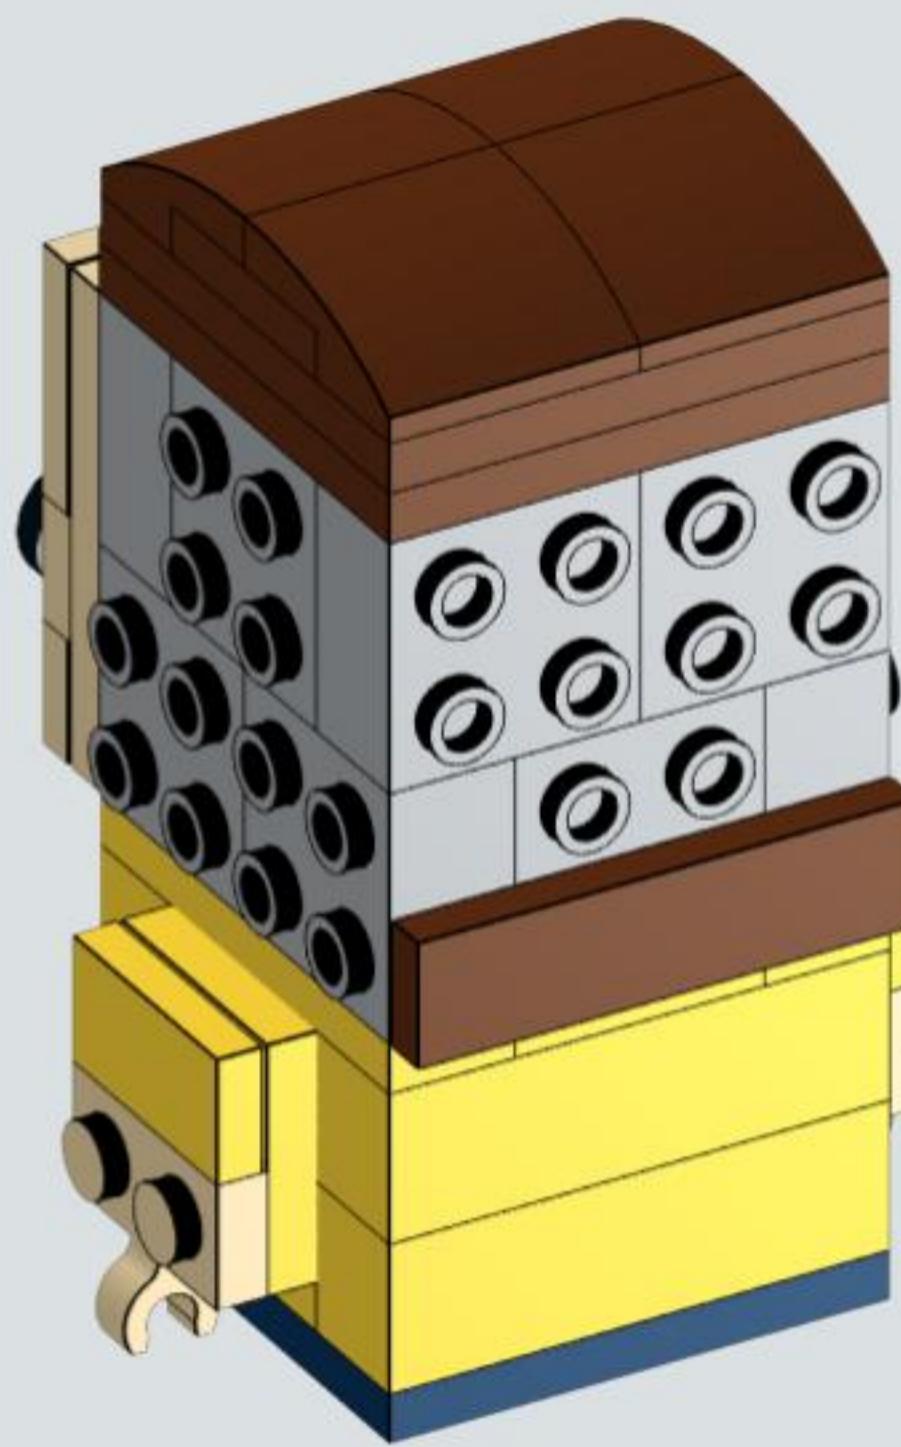

x2

20

21

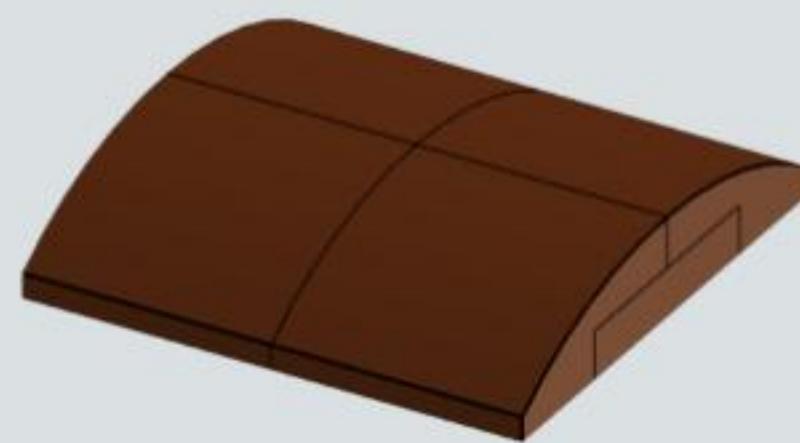

22

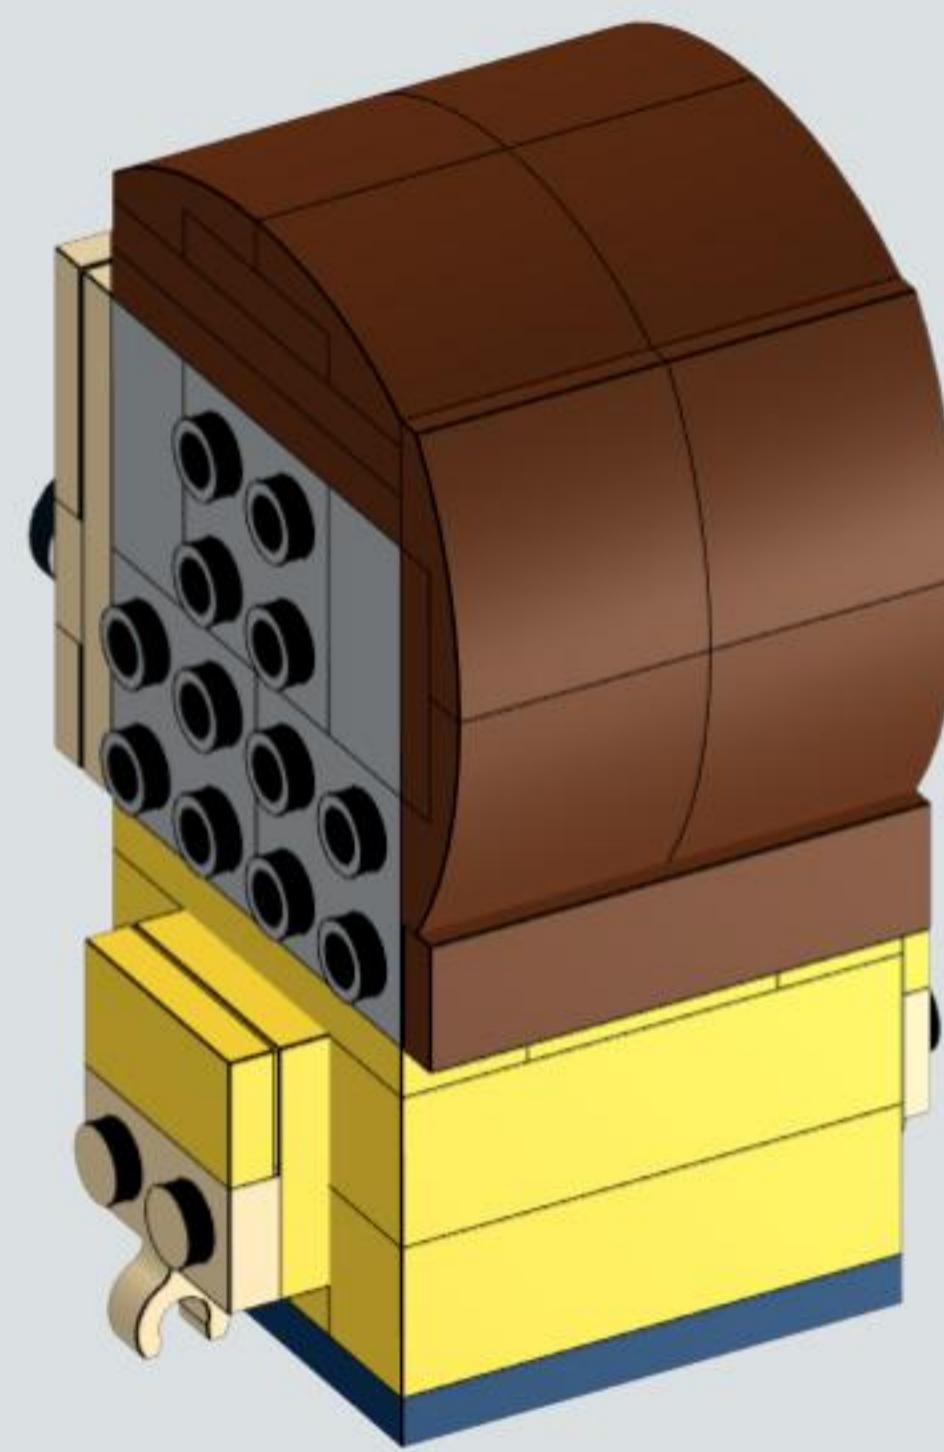

23

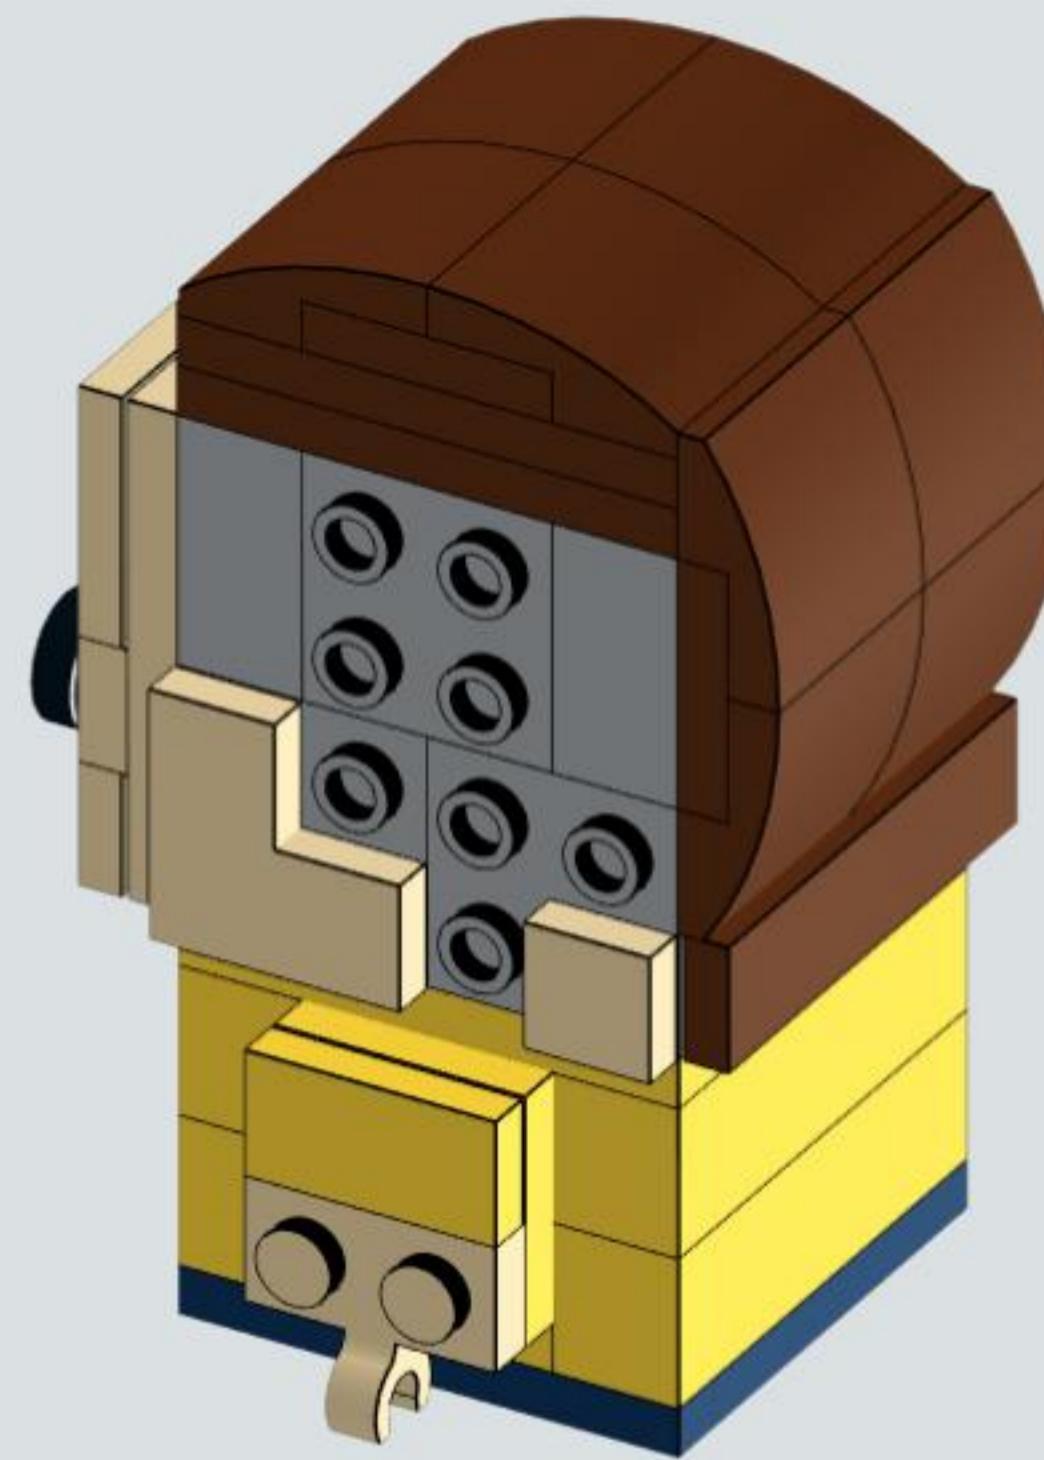

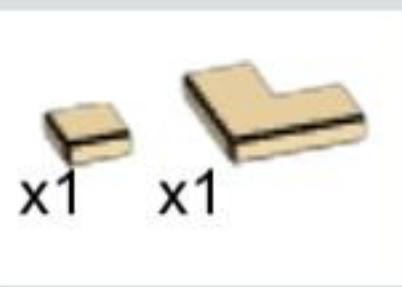

24

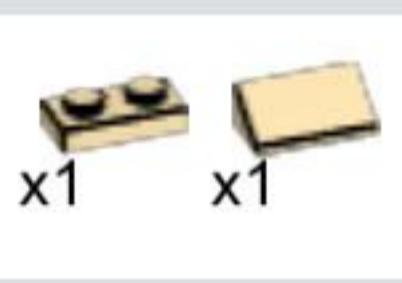

25

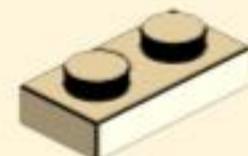

26

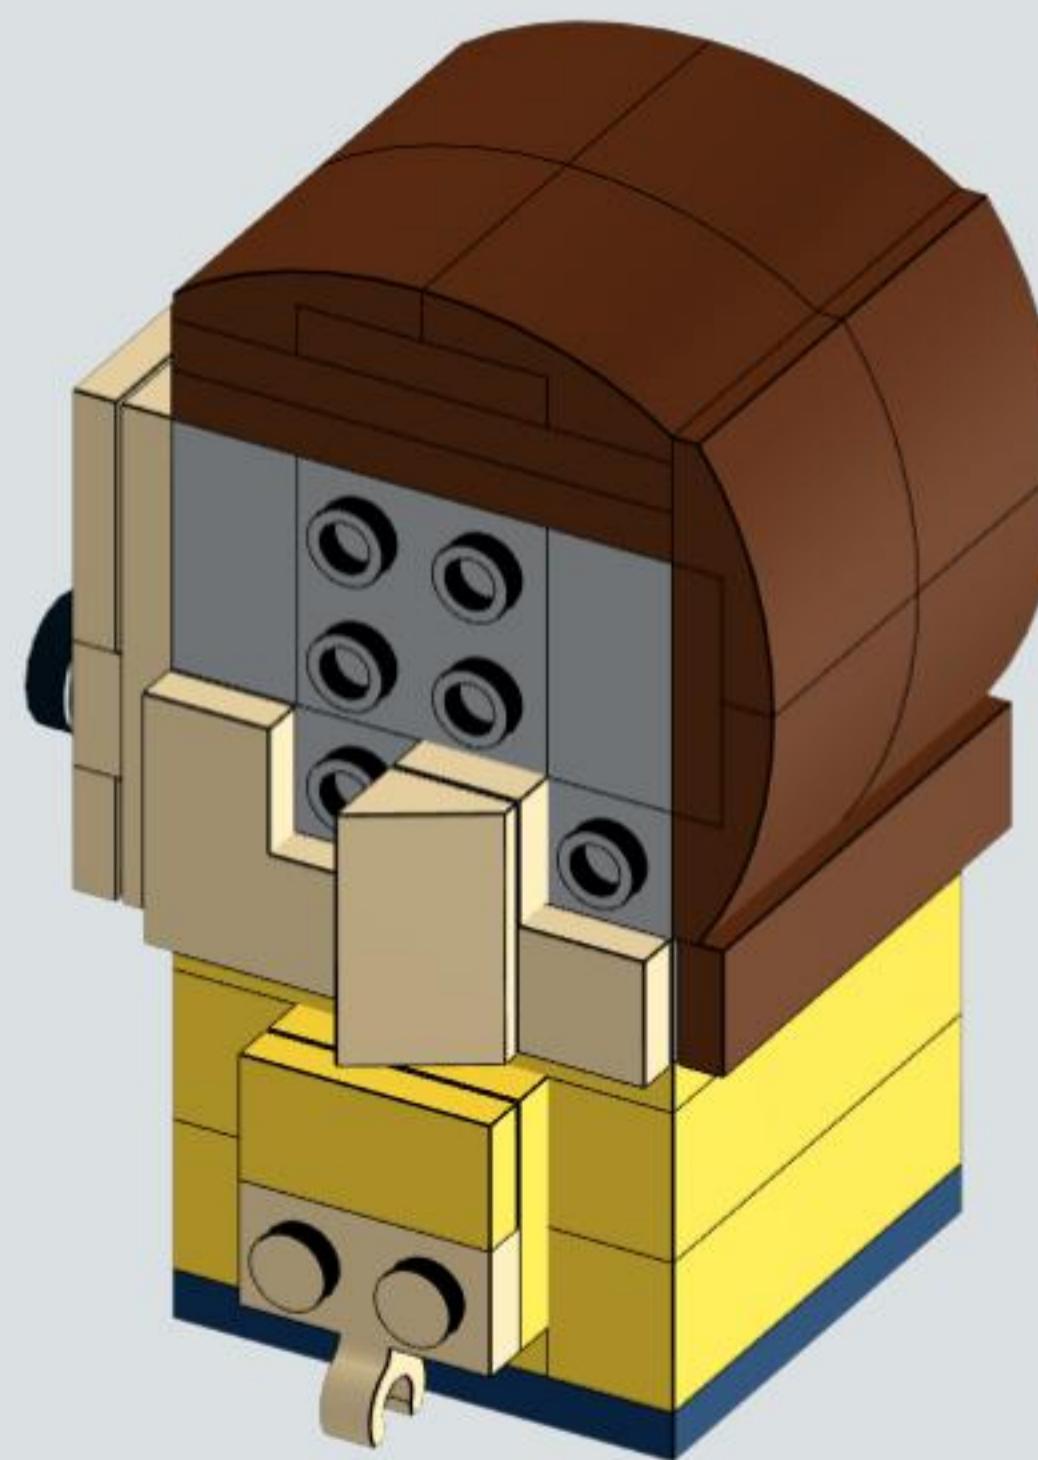

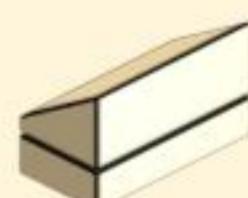

27

1

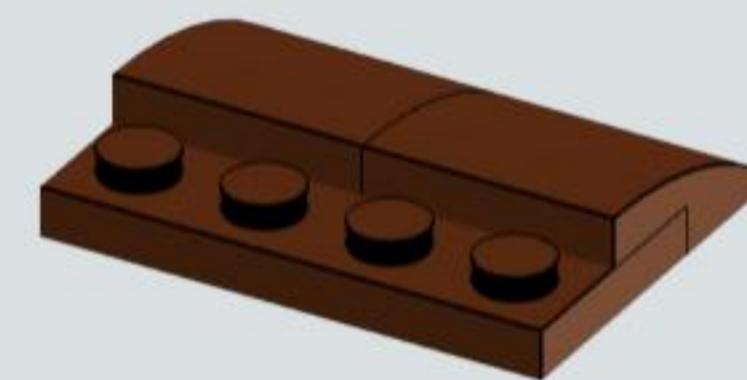

2

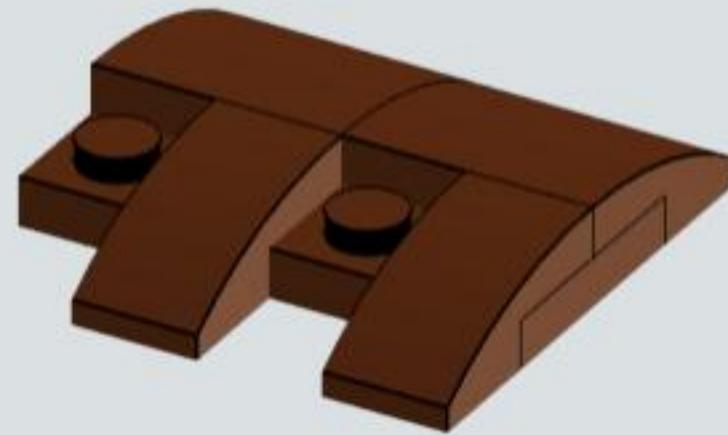

28

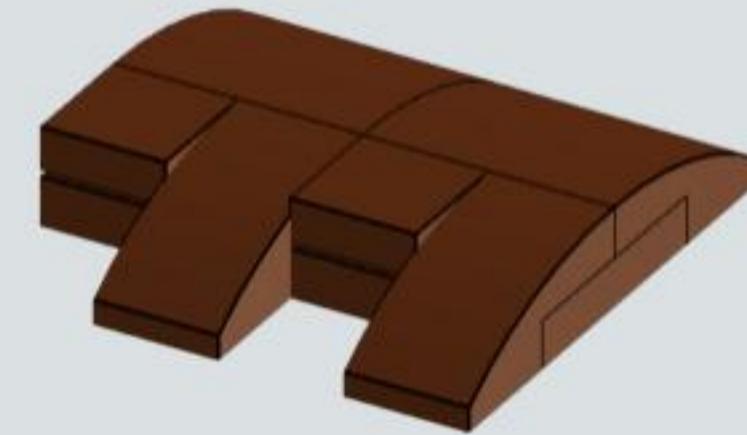

29

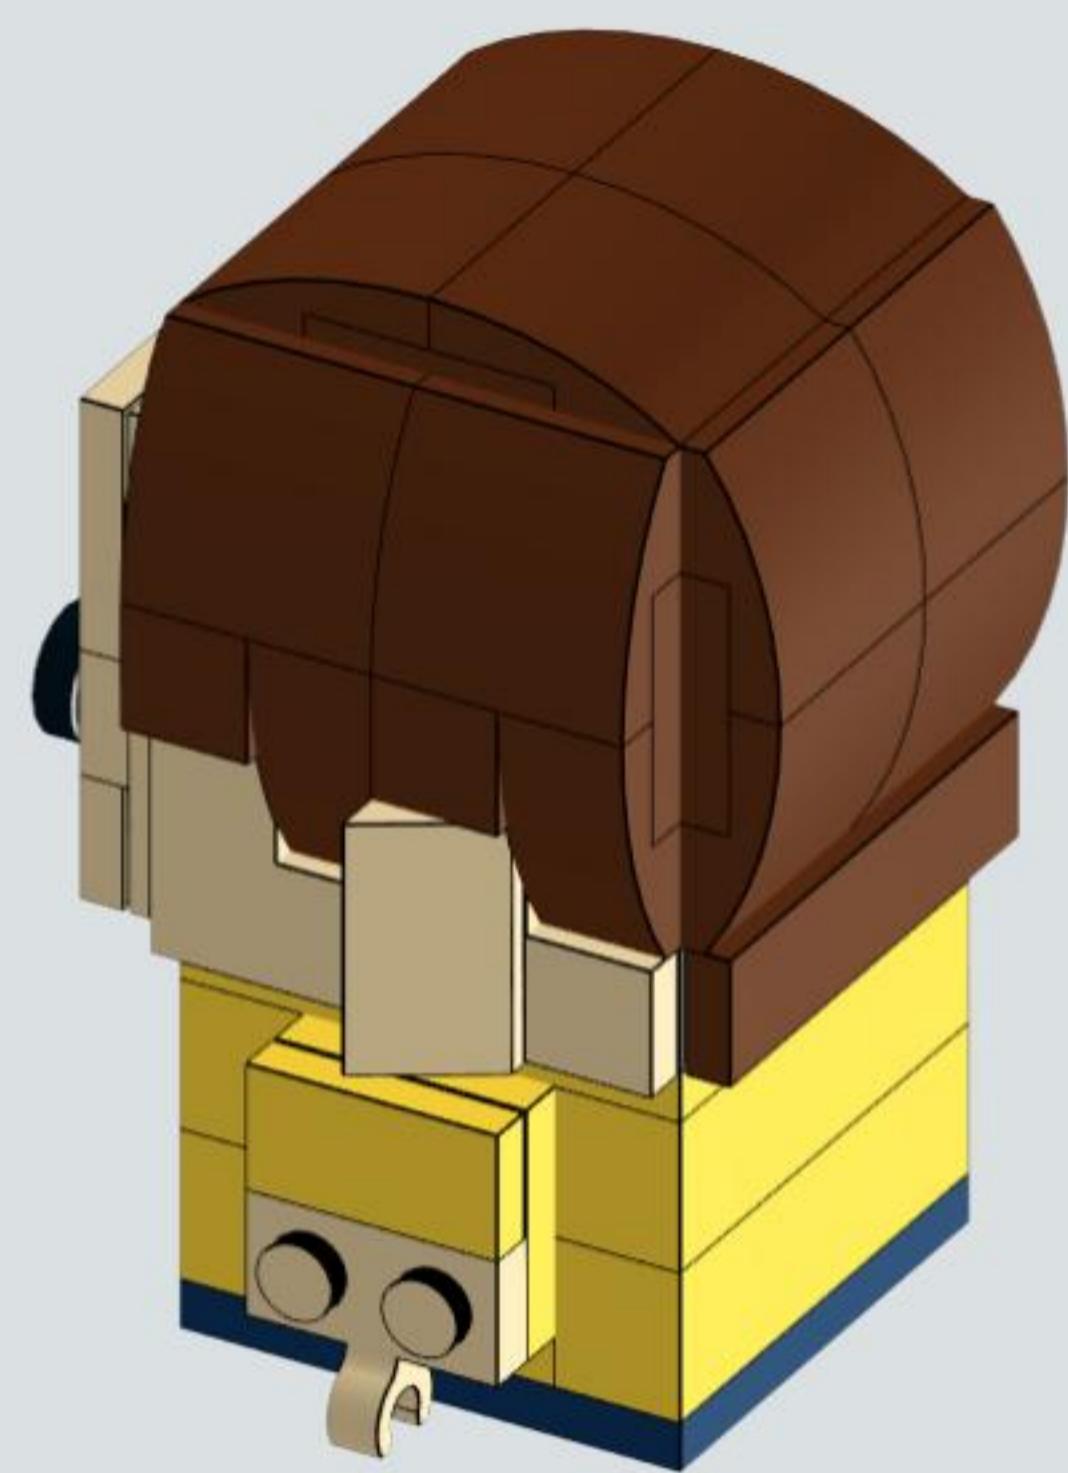

30

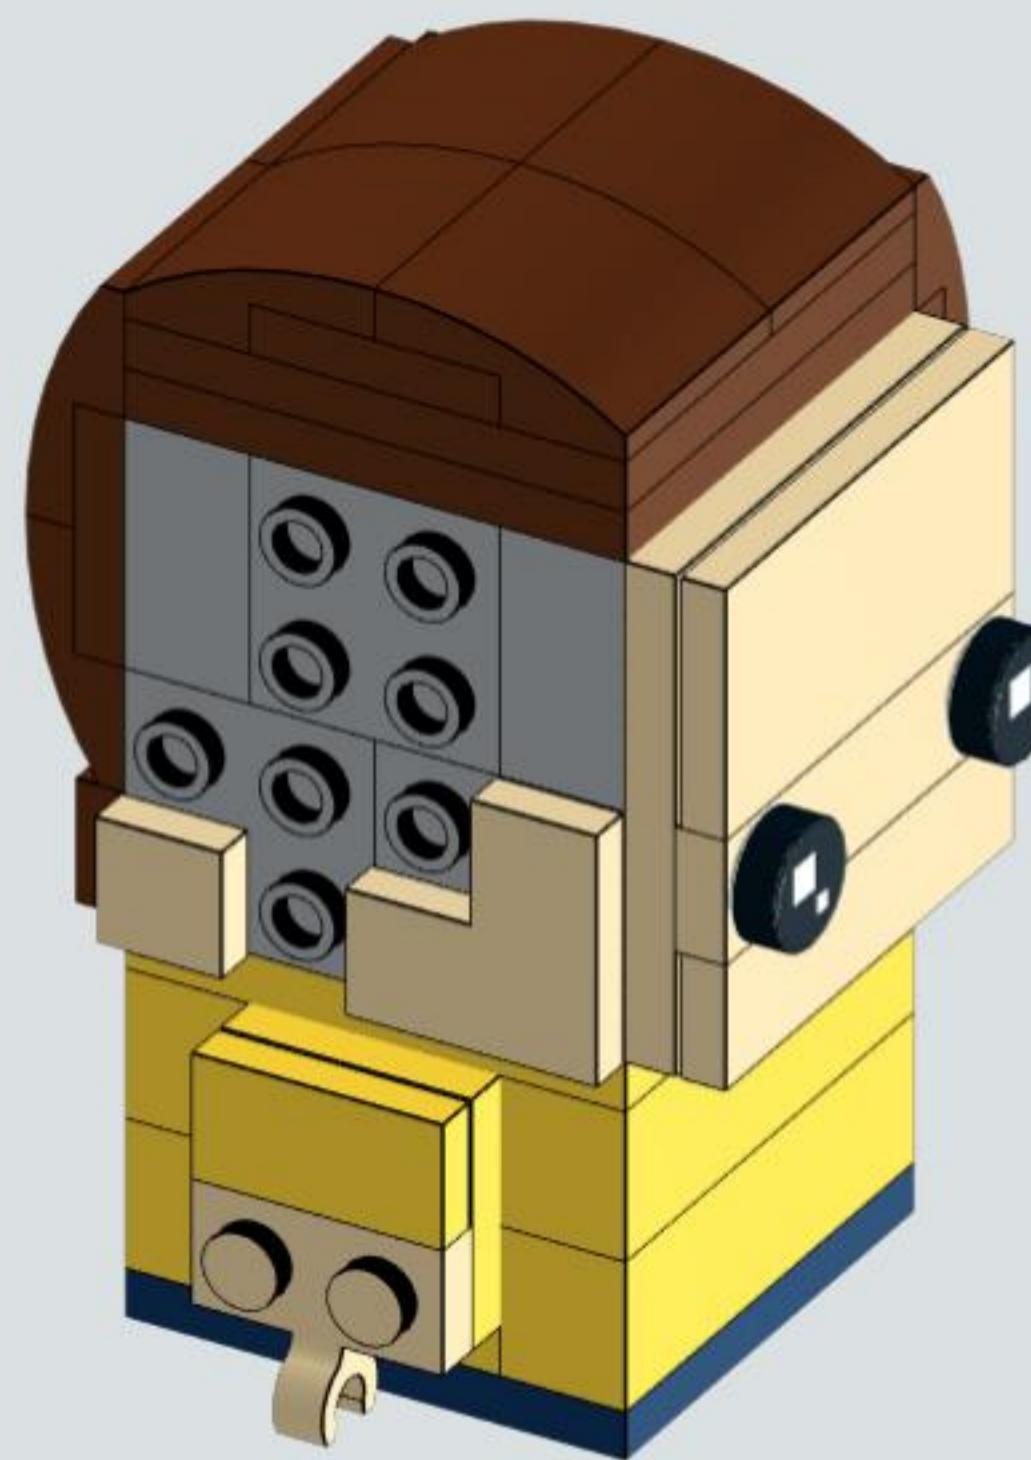

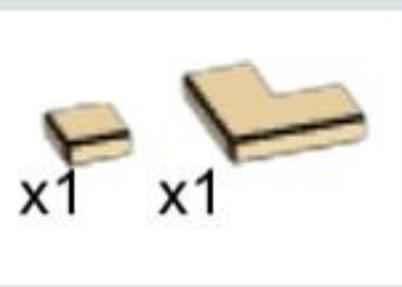

31

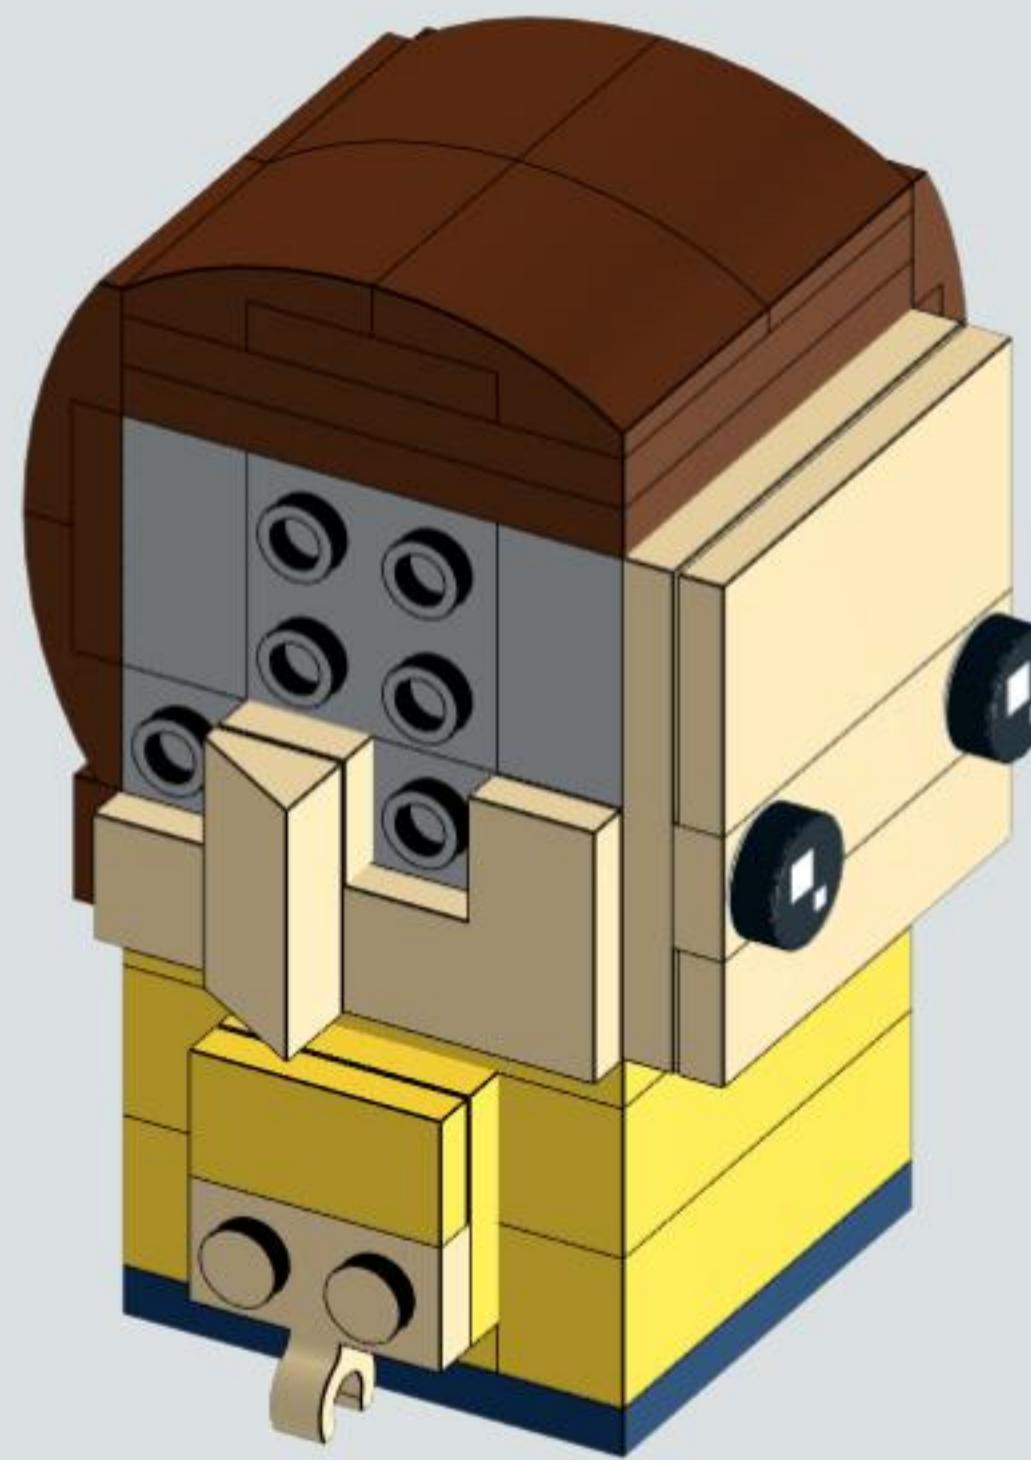

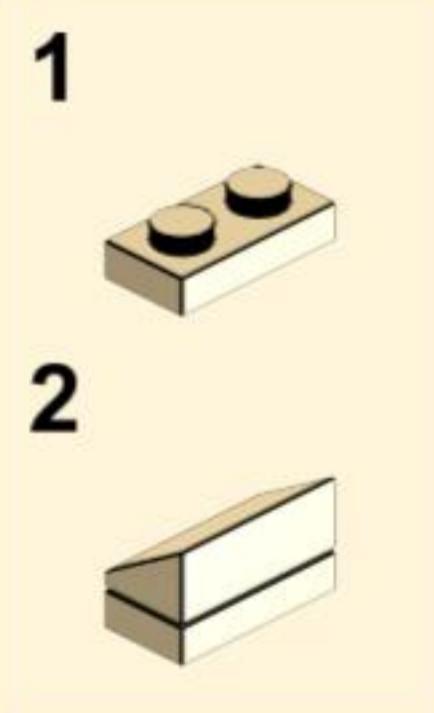

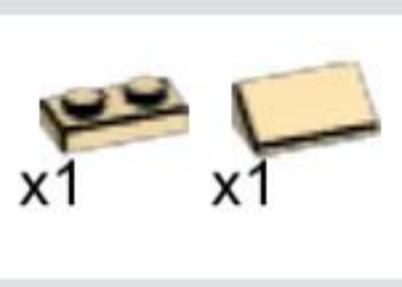

32

33

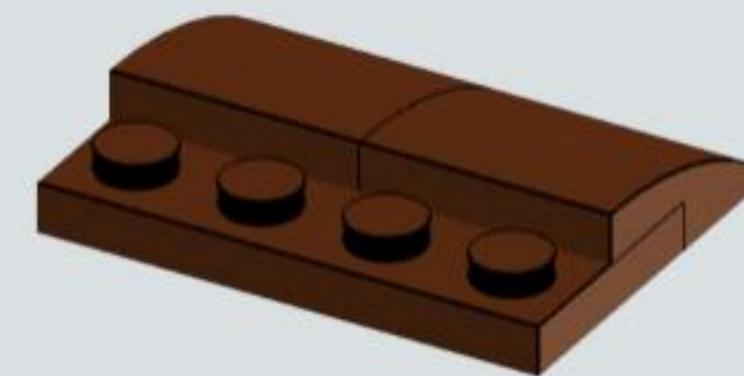

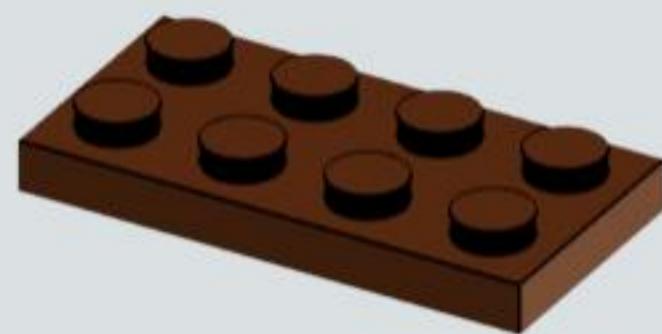

34

35

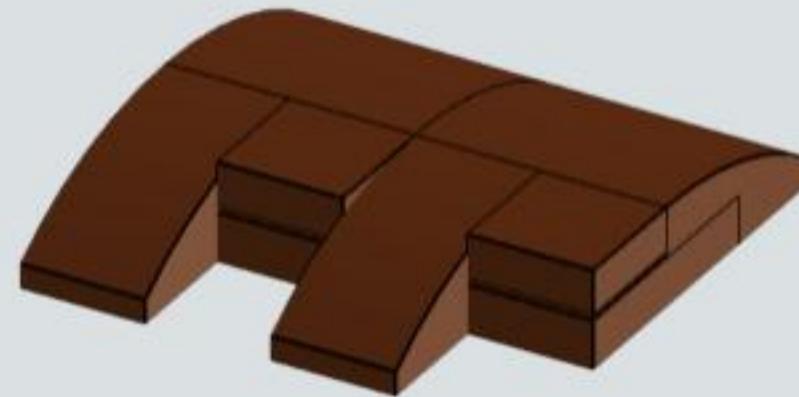

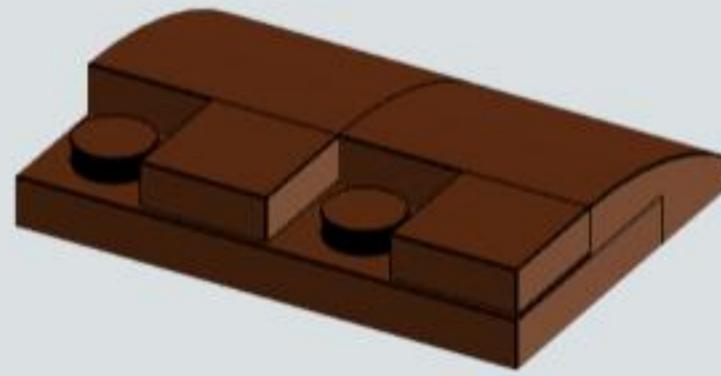

36

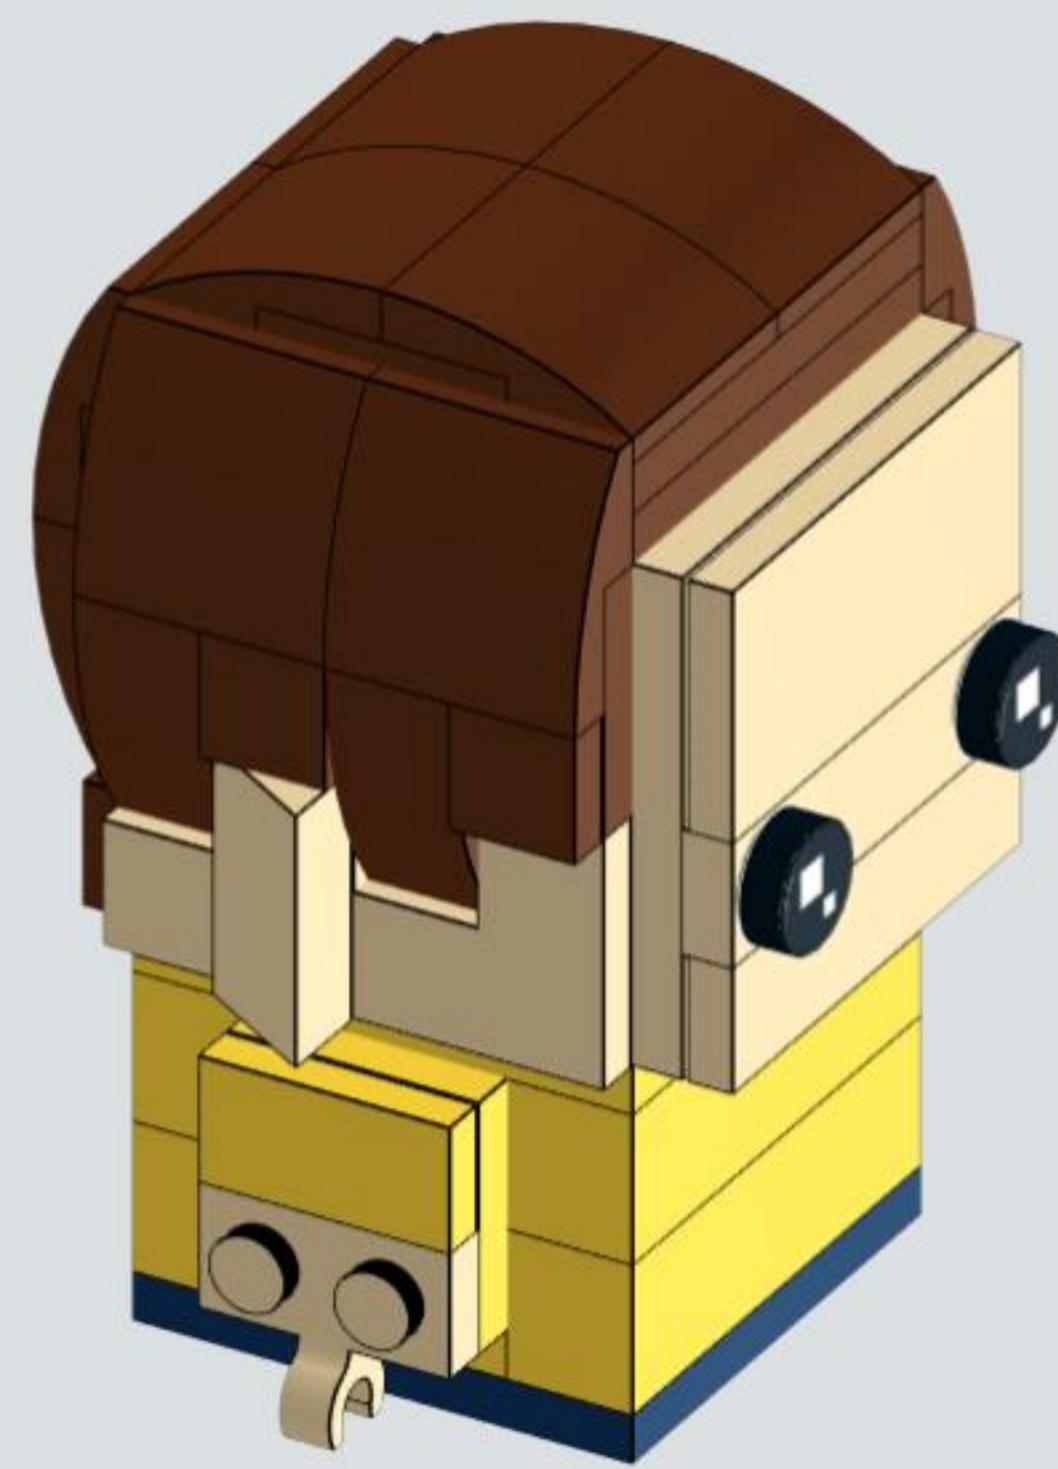

37

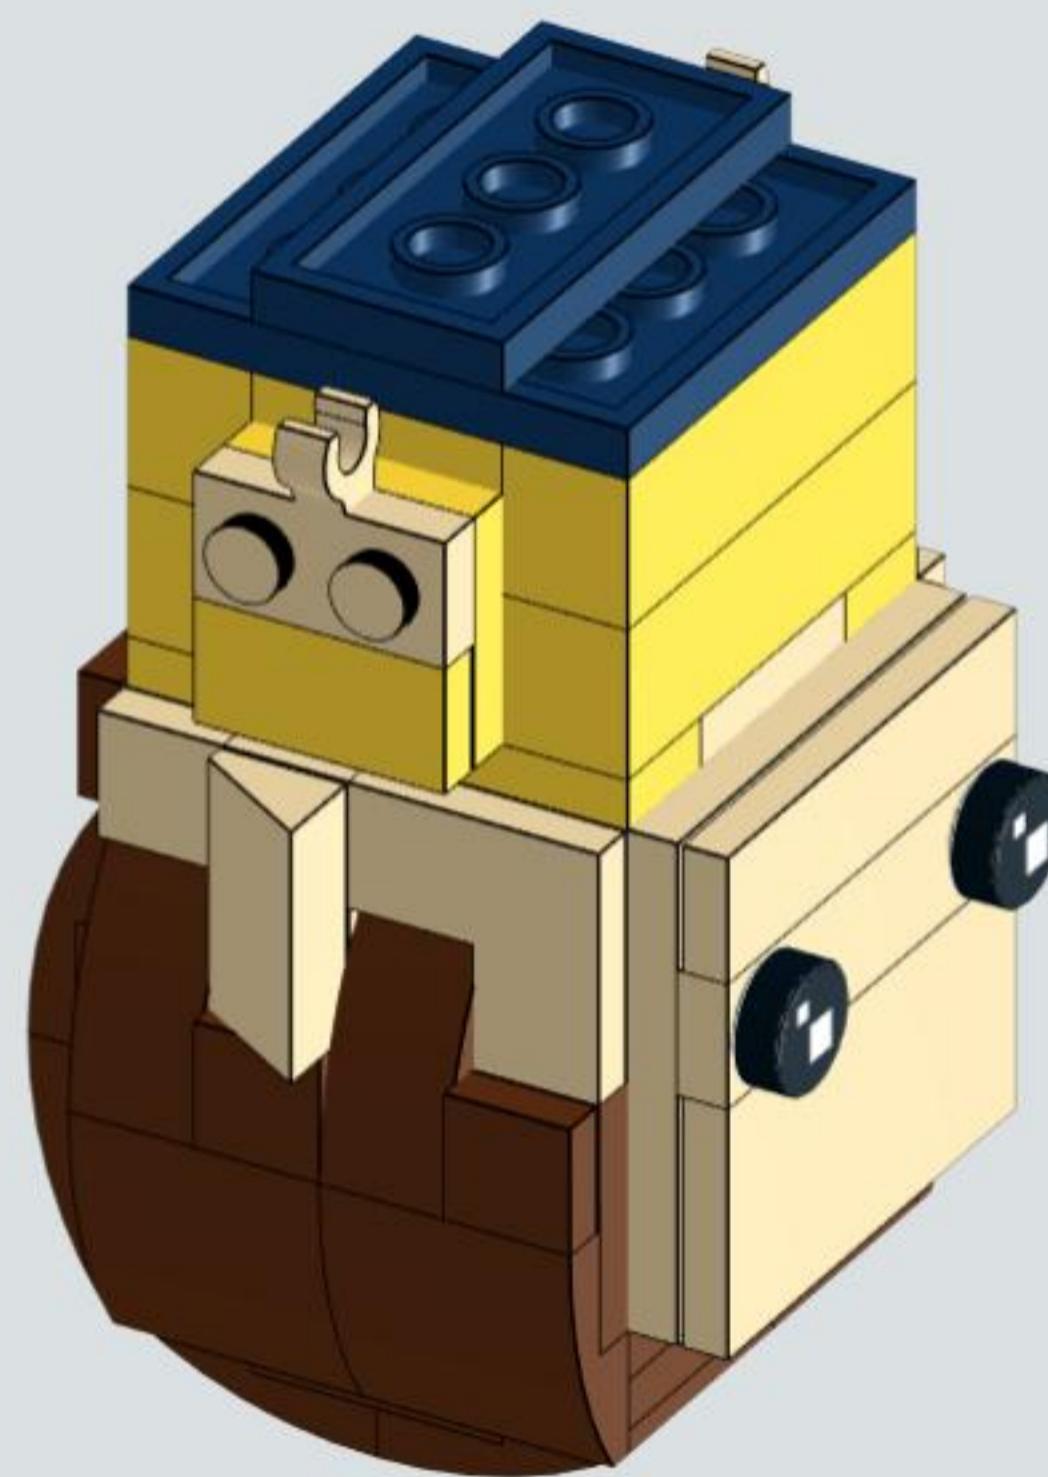

38

39

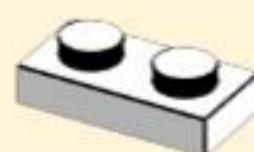

40

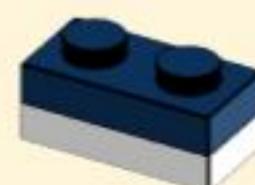

41

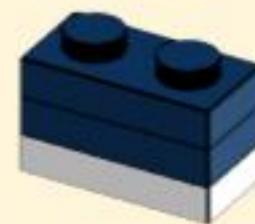

1

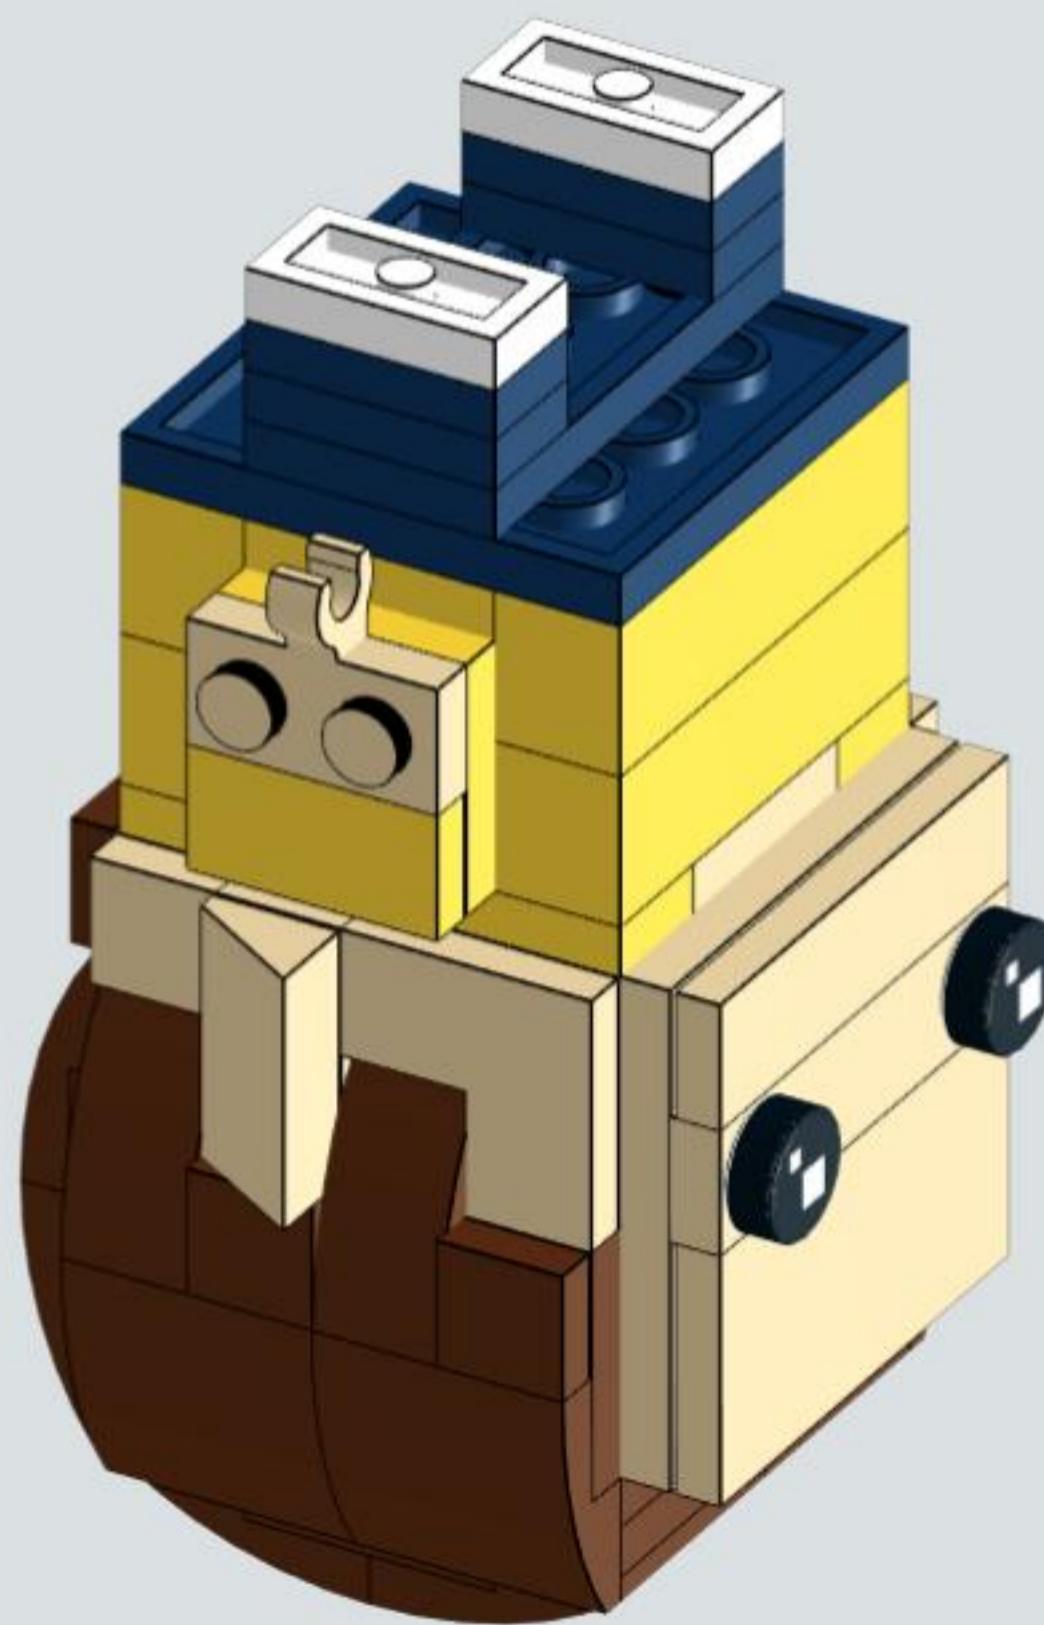

2

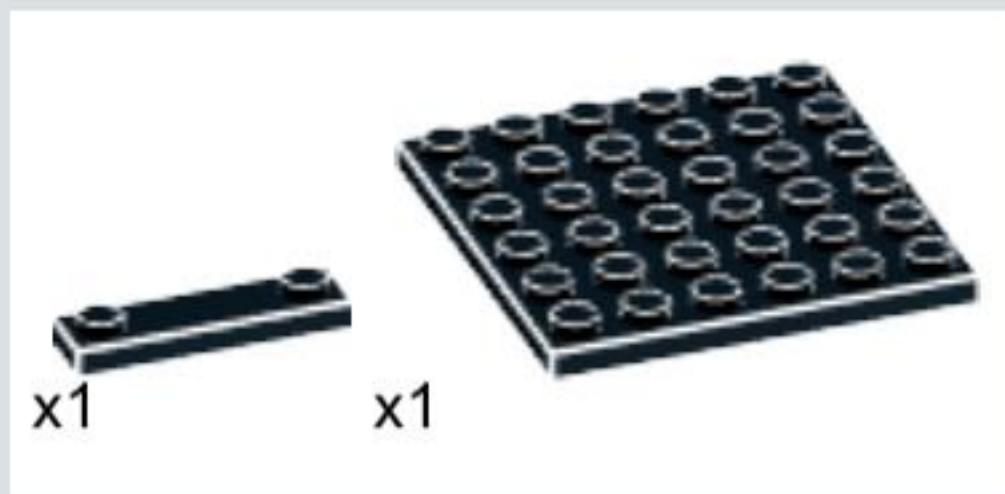

3

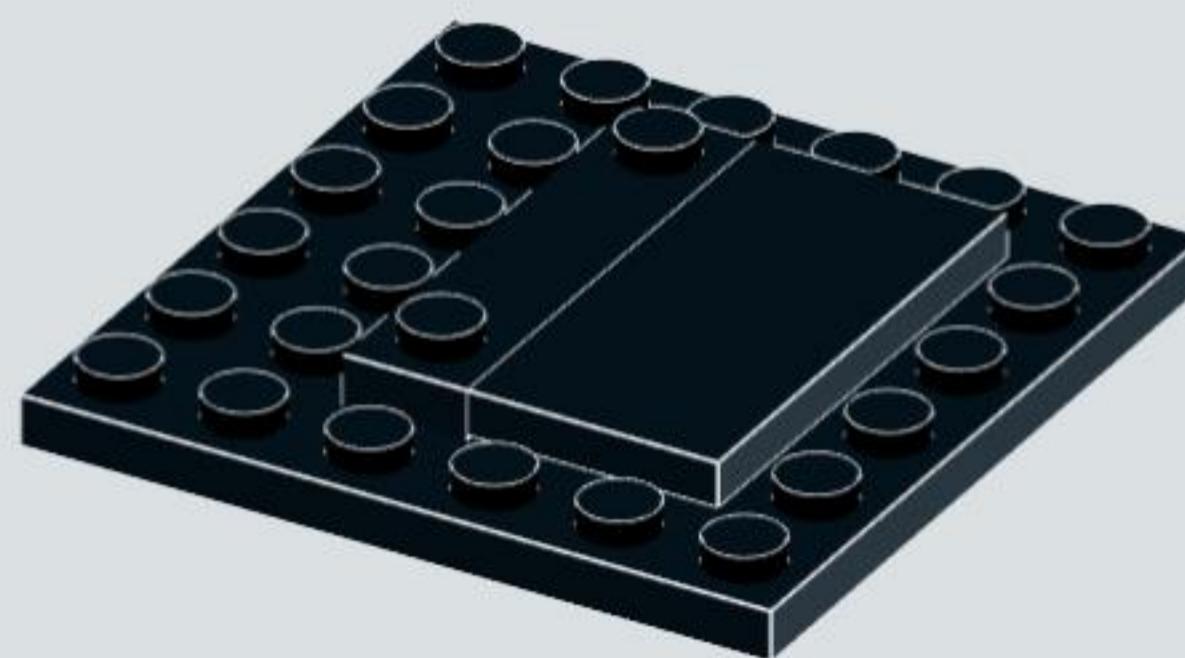

x2

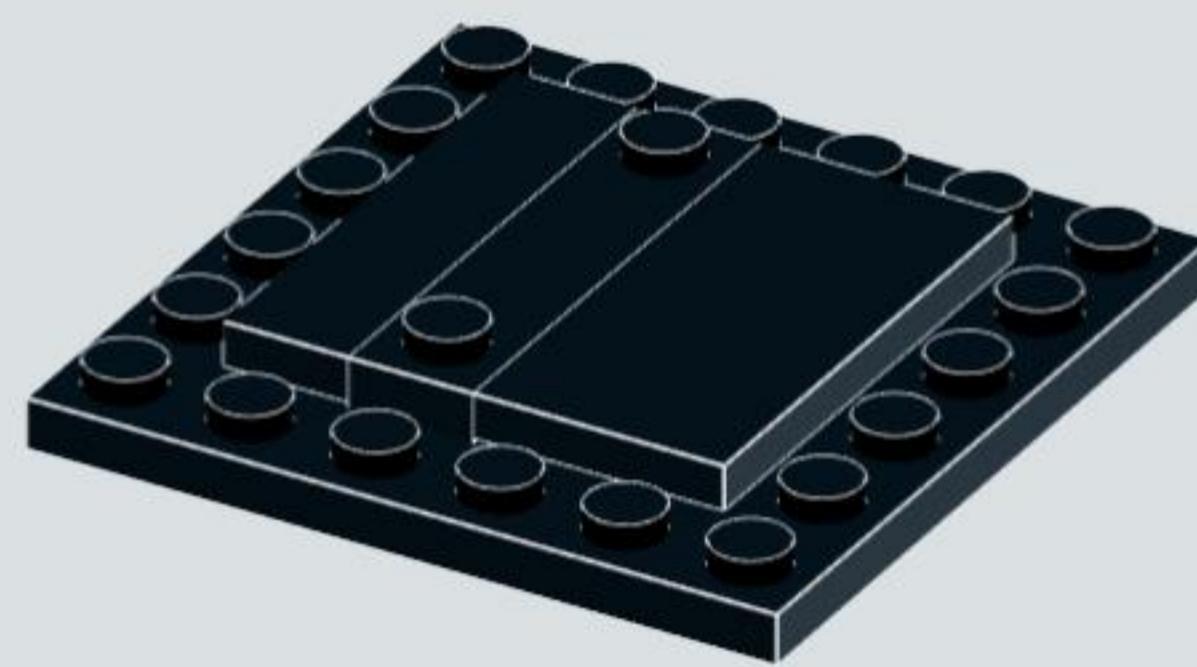

42

43

44

45

x2

x1

x1

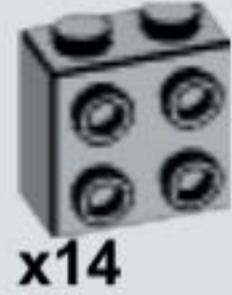

x1

x1

x1

x14

x2

x1

x4

x4

x4

x12

x1

x4

x2

x2

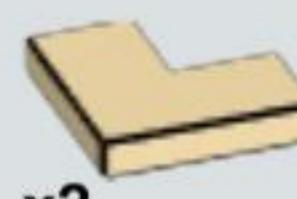

x2

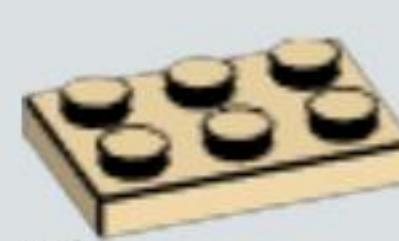

x2

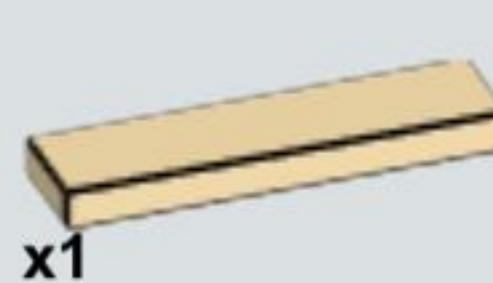

x2

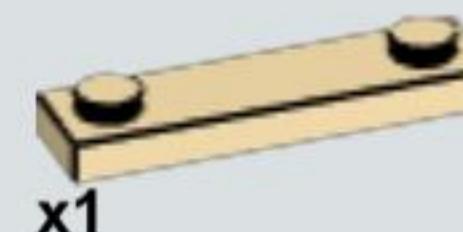

x2

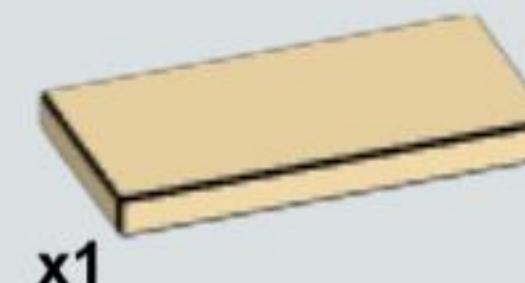

x1

x1

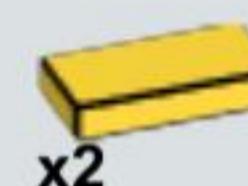

x1

x1

x1

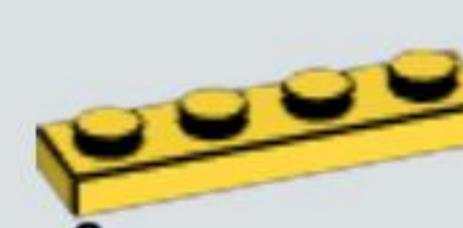

x2

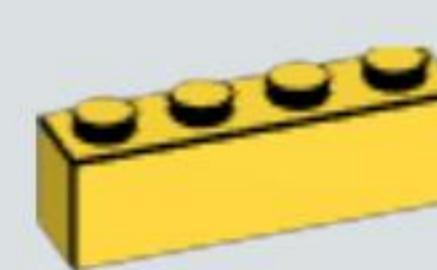

x3

x2

x2

x4

x4

x1

x1

Where to purchase pieces

Lego.com has a PAB (Pick-A-Brick) feature on their website where you can purchase certain pieces in certain colors. Lego does not offer all the pieces and all the colors that have been available in the past. It might be helpful to start assembling pieces using the Lego PAB because of the large selection, and then move to the aftermarket to finish assembling the pieces.

Bricklink.com is a website where you can choose from hundreds of sellers, and you can find just about anything that Lego has ever released. Many of the pieces found in our instructions cannot be bought from Lego.com but can be found on Bricklink in plentiful quantities. Here is a link to a helpful user guide to get you started: <http://www.bricklink.com/help.asp?topicID=35> Shop around a little bit to get a good idea of how much different bricks in different colors are going to cost you.

Tips

Before rushing out to buy all the pieces necessary, look over the instructions to see where certain pieces go. Certain pieces are hidden in the model and it won't matter what color you choose. Other times you might want to change the color of something on the model.

Change the color of the model to suit your needs. You like the glass delivery truck but you want yours to be red, instead of brown. Look at the parts list and exchange brown bricks for red.

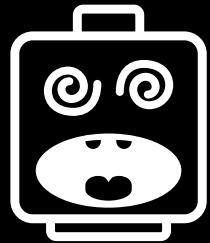

Sometimes using a color that is close will do the trick like using light grey instead of light bluish grey.

You don't necessarily have to use the exact same pieces we do. Sometimes the number of studs is more important than the particular bricks that are used to achieve that stud length. For example, we may show using a 1x8 brick in a particular situation. If it isn't structurally important to use a 1x8 brick and you need to conserve 1x8 bricks, or you're out of 1x8 bricks, see if you can substitute 2 1x4 bricks, or a 1x6 and a 1x2.

When making our models we strive to make sure that all pieces are readily available for purchase on bricklink.com. I cannot guarantee that they will always be available. If they aren't available, look for close substitutes that will achieve the same effect.

Lastly, chances are you might find something in our instructions or parts list that doesn't make sense or is flat out wrong. Please don't get frustrated and give up! If you are having a hard time understanding some part of the instructions or parts list, you might not be the only one. We want to take the time to make sure that all of what we sell is as clear as we can make it. Please feel free to contact me at cpritchett@gmail.com for clarification, or to report errors. If we agree with you that something was confusing, I will fix it for future users of the instructions and send you an updated version!

BRICK MONSTER BUILDING GUIDES

FOR MORE BUILDING GUIDES VISIT BRICKMONSTER.TOYS

These instructions are not for general distribution. For use by the purchaser only.

These building guides are for personal use only. Unauthorized duplication and or modification of these guides, in whole or in part, is strictly prohibited. The models contained within these guides are the copyright of Charles Pritchett / Brick Monster, unless otherwise stated. Unauthorized reproduction of these models for resale, either in whole or as a building kit, is strictly prohibited.

2018 CHARLES PRITCHETT / BRICK MONSTER

While every attempt has been made to maintain accuracy, this material comes with no warranty, express or implied.
LEGO® is a trademark of the LEGO Group of companies which does not sponsor, authorize or endorse this publication or its contents.