The blue pieces should be towards the top of the centrisphere.

The centered conning tower faces towards the front of the centrisphere.

Make sure you attach the hull portion to the bottom of the engine portion!

Make sure you attach the top hull section with the communications array to the top of the engine section!

Where the two attach, the base section should line up with the back of the engine section.

Keep the main frame sections of the ship body in the same order as shown in the initial instructions. This picture numbers the sections so you know which section is being used in these instructions.

Carefully remove the inner hull details and plating from the #4 frame section so that the base arm can attach to the technic brick on the frame section.

The technic pin on the base should be attached in the bottom hole on the #4 frame section.

You may need to support the sides of the ship while adding the frame sections. Here I used a plastic bin.

Carefully reattach the inner hull details and plating to the #4 frame section.

Carefully reattach the inner hull details and plating to the #4 frame section.

Repeat this same process on the opposite arm with the #13 frame section.

Next, we will attach the frame sections #9-12 to the main body, starting from the back of the ship.

It is easiest to attach the frame sections if you open the top and bottom hull portions on both sections. Firmly grasp the clamps at the outer edge of the sections and press together, then attach the inner clamps. Be sure the clamps are firmly attached to each other.

After attaching side frame section #12, repeat the process on sections 5-8 on the opposite side, starting with #8 at the back and working towards the front.

Next, attach the centrisphere. The bottom center of the centrisphere will attach to the clear, round 2*2 brick on the base for support.

Next, attach the remaining side frame sections.

Attach the rear hull plating. To do so, you will need to separate the hinges, attach the upper and lower hull sections to the engine section, and then join them to the central piece.
